

Jubilant survivors of '71 celebrate

By TOM HARRIS
Associated Press

With hope and trepidation, whisky and prayer, mankind greeted the New Year.

Jubilant survivors of 1971 threw crockery in the streets of Rome, climbed Mount Fuji, gave a party for some gorillas at the San Francisco zoo and heard their leaders make mixed predictions for 1972.

Tons of fireworks exploded in frenzied celebrations in Rome, sending scores of injured to hospitals. In striking contrast, Pope Paul VI knelt in prayer in his private chapel in the Apostolic Palace with close aides as midnight struck.

In Washington, President Nixon spent a quiet New Year's Eve at the White House with his wife Pat, before her departure Saturday on a nine-day trip to Africa.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, in a traditional New Year's message, said 1971 was marked by progress "in generally changing the international situation in favor of the peace and security of peoples."

Poland's Communist Party chief Edward Gierek, twelve months after taking power during a wave of economic riots, told his nation, "we are bidding farewell to a difficult and hard year but also a successful and creative one."

Fireworks and liquor sales were reported up all over Europe and Naples police moved in to halt the ignition of a Roman candle said to weigh 12 tons.

In Tokyo, restaurants selling noodles, symbol of long life, did a roaring business. Some Japanese families climbed Mount Fuji to greet the new day, while some Christians attended midnight services, there, then joined Buddhists in temples for further celebrations.

Romans let old furniture and pottery fly as usual from windows and balconies in a traditional gesture of farewell to the old year.

In Ceylon and in the State of Michigan, some celebrating was delayed. Michigan 18-year-olds could not drink legally until after midnight, when a new law was to take effect.

The Ceylonese were forbidden to dance or toast the New Year before midnight because New Year's eve was a Holy Full Moon day in the Buddhist lunar calendar.

Beth Israel Hospital in Boston scheduled a special visiting hour from 11:30 p.m. New Year's Eve to 12:30 a.m. Saturday so parents could celebrate with their newborn. Champagne was provided by the hospital for fathers and, with doctors' permission, the mothers too.

A very big party was set in New York's Central Park for thousands, with a parade, fireworks and music for dancing.

As he does annually, Guy Lombardo was to lead his band in Auld Lang Syne at the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York, while central London resounded to the midnight arrival of the Pipers and Drums of the Scots Guards and the Royal Horse Guard.

Two Californians 'captured'

N. Viet claims 24 U.S. jets downed

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam claimed today it had shot down 24 U.S. warplanes and captured seven American pilots during U.S. air attacks over North Vietnam in the five days ending Thursday.

The U.S. Command says three planes were lost and five crewmen are missing.

A badly garbled report broadcast by Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency said Ngo Dien, a foreign ministry official, produced two of three pilots "captured most recently in North Vietnam."

The agency identified the two as David Wesley Hoffman of California, a Navy pilot captured in Ha Tinh Province Thursday, and his copilot Norris Alphons Charles, also of California and the Navy.

The agency said Hoffman was born March 18, 1941, and Charles, Aug. 4, 1945. It listed other particulars of the two men, including their service numbers, but these were badly garbled.

The third prisoner was identified as Lynn Ellis Gruenther of Oregon, born Dec. 30, 1945, who was hospitalized "for treatment of his serious wounds." The agency said Gruenther was captured last Sunday in Quang Binh province.

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese ground forces rested their guns Friday as a 24-hour New Year's cease-fire began in South Vietnam. Elsewhere in Indochina the war went on.

U.S. jets swept over North Vietnam to assess damage wrought in five straight days of bombing that ended Thursday. B52 bombers and scores of smaller strike planes returned to Laos and raided near the mountain passes, where supplies leaving North Vietnam enter the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The raids on North Vietnam destroyed 11 air defense sites, according to the command's preliminary report.

Preliminary official reports on the raids indicated U.S. planes encountered at least 30 surface-to-air missiles — SAMs — and one MIG interceptor. Other reports suggested the number of SAMs was considerably more than 30.

Youths 'closed' out

Draft status bottleneck

DENVER (UPI) — Draft-eligible persons trying to get their deferments changed by midnight stormed the state Selective Service office by phone and in person Friday only to find the office closed for the holidays.

"What are they trying to do — sandbag us?" one angry draft eligible man said.

The national Selective Service office announced Thursday as many as 100,000 young men under 20 could avoid the draft if they canceled their deferments by midnight.

"They break the news on New Year's Eve when we can't get to the Selective Service to drop deferments and by Monday it will be too late," an angered young man said.

Army recruiting Sgt. William Logue, who said his office received a number of angry calls, offered a possible solution.

"If I were under this, I'd write a letter saying I was requesting a change in my classification from 2-S to 1-A, effective this date," he said. "Then I'd get it notarized and I'd mail it. I talked to one young man and suggested that, so he called his attorney and the attorney said it would be legal."

A spokesman at the Denver city attorney's office, who asked to remain anonymous, agreed in principle.

"I think the letter would be legal," he said, "and I should not think it would be necessary to notarize it. I would send it by certified mail so I had a receipt."

Failing that in view of a shutdown of the Post Office for the holiday, he said he was sure the Selective Service would "grant an extension" of the deadline.

"I really don't see how they could refuse it," he said.

Rose Bowl antiwar show

Court rejects band appeal

Combined News Services

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Robert A. Wenke Friday denied a request for an injunction to stop University of Michigan administrators from halting its band from staging an antiwar demonstration at the Rose Bowl today.

Wenke's decision on an American Civil Liberties Union suit was made meaningless Thursday when the band voted 215-0 not to repeat the demonstration staged at Michigan's homecoming game with Indiana University.

The ACLU filed the action against the school administration on behalf of the student government, charging the university officials with violating constitutional free speech guarantees.

The Michigan band has eight minutes of time to perform at halftime of its national television game with Stanford University at the Rose Bowl.

In addition to the university administrators, Rose Bowl officials opposed the antiwar demonstration.

The outlook was for sunny skies, gusty winds, 43-degree weather and other possible antiwar demonstrations as the 83rd annual Tournament of Roses prepared to march, trot and roll across the starting line at Del Mar and South Orange boulevards this morning.

Veteran bandleader Lawrence Welk is the parade's grand marshal.

Workers scurried about in warehouses across the Los Angeles area, putting last-minute touches on the 60 flower-bedecked floats entered in the parade from throughout the United States and Canada.

At the same time, some 3,500 musicians from 22 marching bands, ranging from the Ontario, Canada massed Pipes and Drums of Thunder Bay Band to the Caveman Marching Band of American Fork, Utah, were practicing songs and steps.

Stables were jammed with horses from some 180 equestrian units. And several thousand hardy souls began arriving half a day ahead of time to take up overnight curbside vigils along the parade route, the vanguard of an estimated 1½ million onlookers expected to see the parade in person. Millions more were expected to watch it on national television.

The early arrivals came prepared to spend a chilly night, many carrying blankets and sleeping bags or tents, and some packing stronger-than-water flasks of liquid.

More than 1,300 policemen and sheriff's deputies will be mustered for crowd and traffic control before and after the two-hour parade.

Spokesmen for the parade said there was a possibility of antiwar demonstrations, although they noted there have been threats of similar demonstrations in past years but none occurred.

Several months before the parade, they said, unsigned leaflets were being distributed in this sodate city of 120,000, urging visitors to demand that President Nixon set a date for total withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and an end to the Vietnam war. The leaflets warned that unless a withdrawal deadline were set, "the American people... will see our anger on international television... thousands will move out onto Colorado Boulevard (the main parade route) and stop the 83rd annual Tournament of Roses."

dential aspirations.

One complication was eliminated early Friday when leaders of the TriBORough Bridge and Tunnel Authority Union agreed to postpone a walkout, scheduled to begin in the afternoon, so that the dispute could be submitted to a fact-finding hearing. The union represents 600 toll collectors.

N.Y. faces transit chaos

NEW YORK (UPI) — New Yorkers braced for a

NEW YORK (AP) — Transit worker unions reached agreement with the Transit Authority on a tentative new work contract early today, which could bring hardship possible New Year's day bus and subway strike to millions and political embarrassment to Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Some 38,000 members of the Transport Workers Union were scheduled to go on strike at 5 a.m. today, five hours after the expiration of their contract with the New York City Transit Authority. The lag would allow New Year's Eve revelers to get home by public transportation.

Lindsay took a personal hand in negotiations as they went down to the deadline in the hope of averting the chaos which accompanied a transit workers' strike in 1966. The 1966 strike ushered Lindsay into office and took 12 days to settle. A recurrence could become a liability to Lindsay's presi-

HHH to enter race formally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey announced Friday he will enter the race for the Democratic presidential nomination on Jan. 10 against front-running Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, his running mate on the unsuccessful 1968 ticket.

Humphrey, 60, now trailing far behind Muskie in the polls, will declare his candidacy in time to field a slate of delegates pledged to him in the April 25 Pennsylvania primary.

The Minnesota senator was expected to pass up the first-in-the-nation New Hampshire primary March 7, where Muskie is believed to have a commanding lead.

Sources said he would concentrate, instead, on the March 14 Florida primary, where his name will be entered automatically, and on the Wisconsin primary three weeks later.

An American cargo ship, forestalled by eight-foot seas Friday, today will attempt to evacuate about half the crew members of a Dutch tanker, adrift 1,200 miles south of Long Beach.

Coast Guard Lt. Dennis Elandson said the American cargo vessel Genevieve Lykes will attempt the rescue of 15 of the 35 crew members from the powerless, 42,549-ton tanker Dordrecht as soon as high seas subside.

The Dordrecht, with a full load of coal, has been "dead in the water" since it lost power when its engine room flooded last Tuesday.

The 20 crewmen who remain aboard the Dutch tanker will depend for assistance on a Long Beach salvage vessel, dispatched Friday by Pacific Tow Boat and Salvage Co. according to the firm's president, John Turner.

The salvage ship Pacific Ranger is expected to reach the disabled tanker by late Tuesday night, the Coast Guard lieutenant said.

The Pacific Ranger will put commercial divers aboard the Dordrecht to evaluate what kind of docking will be required and to choose a port with facilities necessary to aid the ship's docking, Lt. Elandson said.

The divers also will patch the hull of the crippled Dutch vessel so it can be towed to the coast, he said.

Friday morning, the Pacific Ranger was reported off the coast of Ensenada, Mexico, en route to the tanker's position.

The tanker, owned by the Van Ommeron shipping firm, of Rotterdam, is carrying a 40,000-ton cargo of coal.

Douglas Freeman, Van Ommeron's Los Angeles agent with the firm, Trans Pacific Transportation Co., said the Dordrecht's captain had reported Friday that the vessel was in little danger, despite the heavy seas.

Cong vow retaliation

Combined Wire Services

SAIGON, Saturday — Communist troops violated a common New Year's cease-fire in the Vietnam war 18 times in the first 12 hours, military spokesmen said today. The Viet Cong's clandestine liberation radio had promised heavy new fighting in the future in retaliation for five days of American air raids on North Vietnam. Radio Hanoi said Friday North Vietnam captured three American pilots whose planes were shot down during the raids. The cease-fire violations included a mortar attack on a U.S. Army truck convoy on bush Highway One, 37½ miles north of Saigon, just after dark New Year's Eve.

Hospital blast kills 3

TERREBONNE, Que. — Three elderly women were killed and five others were missing and presumed dead Friday after a fire punctuated by an explosion roared through the St. Louis Hospital, 40 miles north of Montreal. Police said all eight were patients at the hospital, which caters mainly to the elderly and maternity cases. The cause of the fire, which totally destroyed the 70-bed institution, was not immediately determined.

Irish bomb hotel, cinema

BELFAST — The biggest bomb explosion in 28 months of violence here wrecked a hotel and movie theater on New Year's Eve, injuring more than a score of persons. Three hundred children attending a movie were led to safety before the blast tore into the theater. A chain of other terrorist bombings followed the big blast in the heart of the Northern Ireland capital. Persons celebrating downtown counted at least six explosions in a 45-minute period around midnight.

More jets for Israel

WASHINGTON — The administration gave indirect support Friday, through a deliberate silence, to reports that the U.S. will be sending more Phantom jets to Israel. Israel also was said to be showing a greater willingness to negotiate a Suez Canal reopening agreement with Egypt than she had earlier this year.

Beer guzzling record

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. Brewers Association said Friday California beer consumption reached an all-time high in 1971. George Ososke, western district director of the association, said statistics indicated Californians consumed 12.3 million barrels of beer, which put $225 million in taxes into federal, state and local treasuries. He said beer consumption increased about four per cent over 1970.

Jobless benefits estimate

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department said Friday it currently estimates that unemployed workers in 13 states and Puerto Rico will be eligible for an extra 13 weeks of jobless benefits on Jan. 30, 1972. The additional unemployment compensation was authorized by a bill Congress passed shortly before it adjourned in December and which President Nixon signed. In order to be eligible for the additional benefits, at least 6.5 per cent of a state's work force would have had to be without jobs for 13 consecutive weeks by Jan. 30, the effective date of the legislation.

Jordan air space violated

TEL AVIV, Saturday — A new year began in the Middle East today without the clash of arms or the peaceful settlement of the crisis that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had demanded by the close of 1971. Earlier Friday, flights of Israeli supersonic jet warplanes twice penetrated Jordan's air space, breaking through the sound barrier on the outskirts of Amman in the first such violations since the August, 1970, cease-fire, Jordanian military officials said.

Wave of bank robberies

PARIS — An unprecedented wave of holiday bank robberies and holdups in France climaxed Friday with a series of attacks which netted gangsters loot valued at $340,000 police said. Bank officials and a young man who tried to subdue a gunman were killed in the attacks whose number police said has been growing daily since Christmas Eve. The largest single amount was stolen Friday — $78,430 in cash plus valuable papers and jewels valued at $196,000.

Malta deadline extended

LONDON — Maltese Prime Minister Dom Mintoff Friday extended the deadline for the withdrawal of British troops from the strategic Mediterranean island to Jan. 15, a defense ministry spokesman said. But, he said the breather would have no effect on Britain's refusal to meet his ultimatum for more money. Mintoff's move came only hours before his original deadline was to expire at midnight Friday.

7 killed in air crash

SAN JUAN, P.R. — The wreckage of Dominican air force plane lost Thursday night along the north coast of the Dominican Republic was found Friday near Constanza City in the nation's central mountains, the U.S. Coast Guard reported. Authorities in Santo Domingo said all seven crewmen on the twin-engine C47 were killed. Rescue teams were sent to the crash site to recover the bodies.

Woman kills family, self

CORPUS CHRISTI — A sick woman apparently used the gun she had given her husband at Christmas to kill him and their four children Friday before turning the weapon on herself, police said. The dead were identified as Robert Whalen, 33, a chief petty officer; his wife Peggy, 32; and their four children — Debora, 12; Kelly, 11; Robert Jr., 9; and Mary, 3. Police said Mrs. Whalen had suffered a nervous breakdown recently.

2 police troopers slain

NEW BUFFALO, Mich. — The driver of a car stopped for a traffic violation shot and killed two state police troopers Friday. He was chased down and killed by pursuing officers. The assailant was not immediately identified. A woman passenger in the car, Dorothy Broz, 39, of Detroit, was arrested and charged with two counts of first-degree murder. She was ordered held without bond. The two officers — Charles Stark Jr., 31, and Gary Rempy, 27 — were shot at close range.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Duel, the dark-haired young co-star of the TV comedy Western series "Alias Smith and Jones," was found fatally shot Friday, his body lying near a Christmas tree in his Hollywood Hills home, police said.

Sgt. Dan Cooke, police spokesman, said officers were not ruling out the possibility that the shooting was accidental, but "it tends to look like a suicide." And he said the initial investigation had turned up a bizarre detail. Another shot was fired about a week ago from the same gun which killed Duel, Cooke said. He said the actor apparently had shot a telegram, framed and hung in the hallway of his home, which said he had lost election to the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild.

An associate said Duel, 31, had been cheerful during a full day of performing on the set Thursday. "He filmed an episode for the show, and he was due on the set at eight o'clock this morning to wrap it up," said Allan Cahlan, unit publicist for "Alias Smith and Jones."

"I spent Christmas Day with him too," said Cahlan. "He was fine, in good spirits." Police said a girl friend, Diana Ray, 28, was at Duel's home when he died. She told them she had been invited to watch the airing of the latest episode of "Alias Smith and Jones" with him Thursday night. After midnight, she said, the actor went into another room, saying, "I'll see you later."

Then she said she heard a shot. Police said Duel died of a single head wound. A pistol was found near the body. Miss Ray was released without charge.

Duel, a bachelor whose real name was Deuel, played the role of Hannibal Hayes, "Alias Smith," co-starring with actor Ben Murphy in the ABC television network series about two Western outlaws trying to reform themselves. With his dimpled good looks and soft-spoken easy manner, Duel had been a frequent choice for plum roles on TV shows and in movies.

His show, "Alias Smith and Jones" had been renewed through the current season, and he was scheduled to be shooting episodes through this March. ABC said it hadn't had time to assess the effect Duel's death will have on the show's future.

Stuart Holmes

Stuart Holmes, who co-starred in silent movies with such luminaries as John Barrymore and Theda Bara, is dead at the age of 87. The Ulster-McKinley Hollywood Mortuary said that Holmes died Wednesday. They said the body would be flown to Phoenix, Ariz., for services and burial there next Wednesday. Holmes, who often portrayed a heavy, appeared in silent films including "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Devil's Island," and "Murder by an Aristocrat." Born in Chicago, Holmes had lived in Hollywood for many years. He had been married to the late Blanca Holmes, an astrologer.

Leading lady

Actress Dorothy Comins, the leading lady in Orson Welles' film classic "Citizen Kane," died Friday in Stonington, Conn., after a long illness. The tall redhead got her start in the 1930s when she was linked romantically to Charlie Chaplin. But she denied the rumors of romance, saying she had met the comedian once or twice in Carmel, Calif., where he was writing a film.

King had it

King Edward VIII gave up the British throne because "he had had enough" and not because of his love for American divorcee Wallis Simpson, a Conservative lawmaker said Friday night. "I still believe that his love for her was very great but I don't believe that was the governing factor," Lord Boothby said in a London radio broadcast titled "47 Years On."

Boothby, now a member of the House of Lords, served in the House of Commons as Robert Boothby. He was a friend of the late Walter Monckton, an adviser of the king in the abdication crisis in 1936. "I think the king had been overplayed," Boothby said. "I think he'd driven too hard as the Prince of Wales and then he suddenly felt he couldn't take on any of it any more." The ex-king and his wife, now the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, live in Paris. The phrase "47 Years On," is a British idiom meaning 47 years after.

First Oscar

Lucien Hubbard, 82, the director of "Wings," the 1927 film that was the first movie to win an Oscar, died of a heart attack Friday at his Beverly Hills home of his daughter, Mrs. Betty Heasley. In addition to being a director, Hubbard had been a producer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and for Paramount, a writer-producer for Universal, and a war correspondent in the South Pacific.

Exile ends

Larisa Daniel, exiled to Siberia three years ago for participating in a Red Square protest against the invasion of Czechoslovakia, returned to Moscow Friday, dissident sources said. Mrs. Daniel, in her 40s, was reported released from exile earlier this month. She is the wife of Yuri Daniel who was sentenced to prison for his writings in 1966 in the famed Moscow literary trial.

The sources reported Mrs. Daniel will go to Kaluga, a town southwest of Moscow, where her husband has been living since his release last year. Mrs. Daniel was one of five persons who raised banners in Red Square on Aug. 25, 1968, to protest the Soviet-led invasion. She was exiled for four years after being convicted of disturbing public order and slandering the Soviet Union.

Bunyan author

James Stevens, who wrote the tales of Paul Bunyan and Babe the blue ox, while working in an Oregon logging camp, is dead at the age of 79. The first Paul Bunyan story sold more than a quarter of a million copies. Stevens, who died Friday, was born in Albia, Iowa. He moved to Idaho and sold four poems to the Saturday Evening Post in 1916 while working in a logging camp. Stevens was working in an Oregon logging camp in 1924 when he wrote his first article. A year later he wrote his first Paul Bunyan story.

Thin man

Dick Gregory, in the eighth month of an antiwar fast, says the public is endlessly fascinated with a man who doesn't eat. "We have such a hangup with food," Gregory mused in an interview, "that when a man stops eating, it really puts folks uptight." Since starting a diet of fruit juice and water last April 24, Gregory has lost 70 pounds and weighs in now at 98.

The 33-year-old black comedian has spent the last few months on a speaking tour of college campuses, two a day, cracking food jokes and plumping messages from antiwar to antidrugs. On the economy: "Food is so high, it's damn near cheaper to eat money." On the administration: "I wouldn't start fasting for two days for Dick Nixon. 'You don't fast to change the hearts of tyrants,' he says. 'It's not to make bad people good. A fast is to rally all the honest, ethical people together.'"

He cites the example of Mohandas Gandhi, who led India to independence with a 150-day fast. "But when you're on a fast," he confides to his young listeners, "people start acting all different. Like, they won't lend you no money no more. 'But the worst thing is all those stupid questions the 'eaters' ask,' he warned up a crowd at Georgetown University here recently. "Like, 'are you hungry?'"

He is hungry. "You know I have vowed to eat no solid food as long as the U.S. States continues to wage war in Indochina," he says. After a pause, he goes on. "If the war should end in the middle of my speech

Gregory's typical meal: the juice of two pears, two apples, nine oranges, two grapefruit and a pound of grapes. "My energy level is very high," he says despite the heavy weight loss. "The hunger is a mental thing." Gregory runs 10 miles a day. He finished third in a two-mile race Thanksgiving Day, and if the war and the fast are still on next spring, he plans to run the Boston Marathon.

This is the seventh fast for Gregory, who once went 81 days on just water. He also has experimented with unusual dieting before. For eight years he was a vegetarian.

PV oil tanks facing court fight on zoning

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors have been urged to seek a court order forcing Standard Oil Co. to abandon a Palos Verdes Peninsula oil storage facility which officials say has violated zoning ordinances for more than 30 years.

Planning Director O. K. Christenson proposed the legal action Friday after saying Standard had failed to meet a 30-day zoning compliance order handed down by the Regional Planning Commission in March.

He said the company wrote the county in April, June and July promising to take some positive action to correct the violation. "But to date no action has been taken to correct the situation," he said.

Christenson said the series of about eight tanks was installed on the property at 28500 S. Western Ave. in 1925 when the area was zoned M-3 (industrial) which permitted the use of oil storage.

In 1937, he said, the ordinance was amended to require a special use permit for storage of oil in the M-3 zone, and later in 1955 the zone was changed to M-2 (industrial) which also required a special use permit.

However, he said, the records show that at no time was Standard or any other corporation granted a special use permit for oil storage at the site.

Christenson said the property was zoned R-1 (single residential) in 1963. But though this zoning provision precluded any oil storage use, no firm action was taken against Standard.

In February 1971 he said a number of community organizations and individuals appeared before the Regional Planning Commission to request termination of the oil tank use.

Long no-play

Seven months ago I sent my daughter's Lionel record player for repairs to the Lionel Toy Corp., Hillside, N.J. 07205. I found the address on the player's inside lid. I sent a letter the next day, asking that the player be repaired and returned. Although I have written to them four times and the postmaster has put a tracer on the package, I cannot get an answer from the company nor my daughter's player returned. Can ACTION LINE help? Mrs. R.L., Paramount.

By now you have received a letter from Spear Products, the company which bought Lionel Toy's phonograph division in Hillside in 1969, asking if you either would forward a $5 check for necessary repairs or request that the player be returned to you unrepai red. A spokesman for Spear located the machine and told ACTION LINE that "although we received the package with the player, we never got any of her correspondence, so we had no way to tell why the machine was sent to us." She apologized for the mixup and promised to contact you immediately.

Screen test

My husband and I ordered a fireplace screen for our daughter and son-in-law from The Iron Place, 122 W. Commonwealth Ave., Fullerton. The owner took custom measurements but when the screen was delivered it was just awful. One side of the screen is three inches higher than the other side and nothing matches. We complained to the owner and he said it was the way he makes custom screens and hung up on us. Can't something be done? Mrs. R.G.H., Fullerton.

Your repaired screen has been returned to you by now. After many calls from ACTION-LINE, Doreas Caballero, co-owner of The Iron Palace, said that they had picked the screen up, repaired and painted it and that "ACTION-LINE won't have to bother us anymore."

Trace

Can ACTION LINE help me get my 1970 income tax refund. The Internal Revenue Service sent me a refund check which I cashed. I then received a second check which I returned to the IRS office in Ogden, Utah. Subsequently, my bank notified me that a stop payment order had been issued on the first check, and I had to reimburse the bank. Since then, I have written to the IRS several times, but nothing has been done. I have moved several times since I filed my return which may be causing some of the problem. K.T., Long Beach.

An IRS public relations officer has initiated a second tracer on the check you returned, and he has promised to stick with your problem until it has been solved. He couldn't find out what happened to the first tracer. If the check has not been cashed, you should have the money in about three weeks. If the tracer indicates that the check was cashed, you will have to sign an affidavit stating that you didn't endorse the check and then a new check will be issued to you.

Inspect inspectors

Do officers of the California Highway Patrol vehicle inspection stops have any special training in auto mechanics? How are the official repair stations chosen and who sets the rates? Can an individual have the repairs done at the dealer of his choice and have the official station sign and verify the citation without charge? S.E., Fountain Valley.

All California Highway Patrolmen are trained to give a routine inspection of vehicles for violations but those assigned to inspection stops receive additional mechanical training, said CHP Sgt. Marlow Johnston. Each inspection team has a civilian who has been tested, hired and specially trained by the CHIP to serve as a technical expert on smog devices and under-the-hood inspection, Johnston said. Independent garage owners apply for a license to be an official smog, brake or lamp station through their local CHIP office. The persons who will perform the inspection are tested and if they qualify are licensed without fee. The station is inspected and licensed for $10. Licenses must be renewed annually for $5 fee. Stations are inspected at least once a year. The Highway Patrol does not set the price for certification but they require that the rates be clearly and conspicuously posted, Johnston said. Any dealer may do the repairs but only an official station can verify them and there is a charge for the certification.

AS A RESULT of this meeting, he said it was determined the tanks violated the ordinance and Standard Oil was so told by letter March 24.

Christenson told the Independent Press-Telegram that Standard may be forced to abandon the tanks if the courts uphold the county's position.

He said there are no provisions for getting an oil storage use in a residential zone, and Standard's only recourse would be to apply for a change of zone to M-3 and a subsequent special permit.

"But the chances of getting this would be very slim, I think, because oil storage use would be totally incompatible with the surrounding area now," he said.

Picketing expected at port

Teamsters removed their picket line from the main gate of the Los Angeles Container Terminal in Wilmington Friday but are expected back Monday morning.

Extension of the Teamster picket lines to other container terminals in the Long Beach-Los Angeles port complex could mean new trouble on the waterfront.

The seeds of new conflict were sown Friday when the longshoremen broke a long-standing policy and crossed the picket line of a union with which they have wrangled for years over the job of loading and unloading containers for ships.

Jake Koenig, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 692, claimed the picket line was "purely informational." However, other sources said the union had thrown up the line as a test to see if the ILWU would observe it.

HARBOR Division police said Friday's picketing was peaceful and without incident. The pickets were pulled off shortly after the container terminal closed down for the New Year's holiday.

Both unions want the job of packing and unpacking cargo containers. This unresolved problem is one of the major issues blocking agreement between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association.

At the Los Angeles Container Terminal, containers are packed and unpacked by longshoremen. However, at California Cartage Co.'s container freight station and Sealand operation in Long Beach, the same job is done by the Teamsters.

When Teamster-driven trucks pulled up to the picketed terminal Friday, the drivers refused to drive across the line.

Burglar forces window, steals TV

A burglar who forced open a bedroom window to enter the William Martinez residence, at 1029½ Cerritos Ave., took a television set valued at $115, Long Beach Police said Friday.

Cigarette sales rise 22 per cent
Revenues jump despite ad ban

NEW YORK (AP) — Cigarette sales rose again during 1971 despite the ban on television and radio commercials, according to industry calculations.

At the first anniversary of the ban, industry sources estimated consumption had risen in 1971 by 1.5 per cent to 835 billion cigarettes. Sales grew by the same amount in 1970, after two years in which consumption declined.

Cigarette sales were expected to total $11 billion for 1971, up 22 per cent from $9 billion in 1970. Price increases prior to the wage-price freeze accounted for much of the rise in dollar sales, industry observers said.

Industry analysts estimated that H. J. Reynolds, the industry leader and maker of Winston and Camels would sell 109.9 billion cigarettes in 1971, compared with 105.7 billion in 1970. Philip Morris sales were expected to reach 96.3 billion, up from 87.5 billion in 1970 and L. & M. could slip to 32.5 billion from 34 billion in 1970, the trade sources said.

OF THE top six companies, only American Tobacco, maker of Pall Mall, and Liggett & Myers were expected to report lower sales. American's sales were expected to drop to 93.5 billion from 100.5 billion in 1970 and L. & M. could slip to 32.5 billion from 34 billion in 1970, the trade sources said.

"One of the things that had been holding sales down in the past was very effective anti-smoking ads on television," said Irwin Kellner, an industry specialist with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. "Since the ban, these commercials rarely appear."

Before the ban took effect last Jan. 2, television stations had to run one anti-smoking commercial for every three cigarette commercials aired. Since the ban, airing anti-smoking commercials has been voluntary for station managers.

John C. Maxwell, a tobacco analyst for Oppenheimer & Co., a brokerage firm, also attributed the renewed growth in cigarette consumption partly to the increased number of people in the 20 to 40 age group, where smoking is heaviest.

DURING the past year, the industry stepped up advertising expenditures in print and outdoor media sharply, but outlays fell short of the level that existed when television was used.

Cigarette companies spent some $220 million on television ads in 1971, according to Advertising Age, the advertising industry publication. It estimated, however, that spending on other media in 1971 rose by only about $120 million. The magazine estimated cigarette advertising expenditures in magazines doubled in 1971 to $112 million; outlays in newspapers doubled to about $60 million; billboard advertising rose 1,000 times to $30 million to $50 million; and advertising on buses, trains and subways doubled to $5 million.

Manufacturers also boosted their spending for point-of-sale advertising, promotional allowances, premium offers and sponsorship of sports events. But industry observers said expenditures were still very modest compared with those made for television ads.

R. J. REYNOLDS said it would spend 30 per cent less in 1971 for cigarette advertising than in 1970 when expenditures totaled about $76 million. However, the company went into a new promotional area, donating some $400,000 in prizes for sports events this year.

Merchants radiate Yule cheer
Holiday sales fuel '72 hopes

NEW YORK 12 — An extra shopping day before Christmas boosted sales for retailers across the country and buoyed their spirits for a business upturn in 1972.

"Early in the year, business was soft but it ended like gangbusters," says Joseph Dries, manager of the Brookfield Square Shopping Center in Brookfield, Wis.

The U.S. Commerce Department reports that for the week ended Dec. 25 retail store sales in the U.S. rose to $9.98 billion, 12 per cent ahead of last year when the pre-Christmas week contained one less shopping day.

ACROSS the country most retailers repeated the same story. The 1971 Christmas season was an outstanding success.

In New York, the 14-store Macy chain said it had a record Christmas and took in $4 million on a single Saturday.

Richard Marcus, vice president of Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, said the Christmas season brought "very impressive sales increases" which could make 1971 a record year.

Retailers cited a variety of reasons for the improvement in Christmas sales. For one thing, Christmas 1970 was so slow that almost anything would have been better.

"LAST YEAR was a disappointing year, but this year was not only above last year but way over two years ago for both November and December," says a spokesman for Chapin's which opened stores in downtown Minneapolis.

But perhaps a more important factor stimulating Christmas sales, was signs of economic improvement late in the year which encouraged consumers to loosen the purse strings.

"Shoppers had a different attitude this year. Everyone had the feeling things were looking up economically and they were just buying a little more," said Ben Hyman, owner of Ben Hyman & Co., a general merchandise distributing company in Atlanta.

However, Hyman and other retailers noted that Christmas shoppers were buying more practical items.

"THEY WEREN'T buying the higher priced merchandise. They bought more in other ranges," said Hyman, noting his December sales were up 18 per cent.

Retailers said that among the more popular items this year were clothing for men, women and children, as well as educational toys for children.

Even amid all the good cheer, however, there were still some retailers who said Christmas sales were not as good as they had hoped.

"If we had an increase it was slight," says Kenneth J. McCarthy, vice president of Younker Brothers, Inc., a department store chain in Iowa. The reason, he added, might have been the lower per bushel price paid Iowa farmers this year for their corn because of a bumper crop.

But most retailers were optimistic about 1972, encouraged by the fact the week after Christmas was very good for sales.

"The days after Christmas were excellent," reported Richard Murphy, manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stores in metropolitan Atlanta. "Business has picked up tremendously and I think it will continue to from now on out."

Secret British WWII papers bared

'Kill top Nazis on sight,' urged Churchill aide

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's war cabinet at the end of World War II discussed a proposal that all top Nazi and Fascist leaders should be shot on sight without trial, official British government documents disclosed Saturday.

The proposal, put to the cabinet by Viscount Simon, lord chancellor at the time, suggested a "most wanted" list of about 80 top enemy leaders who would be shot on sight should be drawn up.

The list would have included Nazi Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Italian Fascist Duce Benito Mussolini.

BUT BOTH the United States and the Soviet Union wanted them brought before war crimes courts. After discussion at two lengthy cabinet sessions, the proposal was shelved the documents showed.

In the end, Hitler committed suicide in his bunker in besieged Berlin and Mussolini was killed by anti-Fascist Italian partisans.

The disclosure was included in British cabinet papers for 1941-45 and other World War II documents released by the government for public inspection.

They totaled more than 950 large volumes.

SIMON'S proposal to kill top war criminals without trial was contained in a long memorandum submitted to the cabinet.

Simon argued it was "beyond question" that Hitler, Mussolini and other top war criminals must be killed for launching the war and for the "wickedness" they perpetrated in their conduct of it.

He argued any trial would be "exceedingly long and elaborate and would give enemy war leaders an opportunity to make lengthy propaganda speeches."

He said Hitler might resort to the defense that in the past other countries had waged aggressive wars without their leaders being tried as war criminals.

THE CABINET at first took the view that it would be more convenient to proclaim the top Nazi and Fascist leaders "world outlaws," liable to summary execution if they fell in Allied hands.

Later, it was suggested Hitler and many other Nazi leaders could be treated as soldiers and refused quarter.

The argument was ended by the deaths of Hitler and Mussolini and the end of the war.

Among the documents was a secret letter from Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, forwarded to the cabinet in June, 1945, by Field Marshall Sir Bernard (now Viscount) Montgomery.

IN IT Ribbentrop claimed that neither he nor most members of the former Nazi government had any idea what was happening in the concentration camps.

"Every decent German like me deplures such acts," Ribbentrop said.

He claimed he always had considered Britain — where he was German ambassador in the mid-1930s — as his "second home" and that he and Hitler always had wanted an Anglo-German alliance more than anything else.

Ribbentrop was hanged as a war criminal at Nuremberg in 1946.

THE BIG THREE meet at Yalta, Russia, in 1945 to shape the post-World War II world. From left, Winston Churchill, Franklin Roosevelt and Joseph Stalin.

East-West coexistence

Churchill foresaw peace

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's World War II Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill believed the Soviets and the West could work together harmoniously after the war, British government documents of the time disclosed Friday.

It was a view shared by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

But the documents showed the Soviets repeatedly suspected the U.S. and Britain of trying to make a peace deal with the Nazis behind their backs.

They also showed the late Soviet leader Marshal Josef V. Stalin cold-shouldered a personal attempt by Roosevelt to get the Soviet Union to give up the Baltic states and Soviet-occupied parts of Finland and Romania.

AMONG the documents was a report by Churchill to the British cabinet on his meeting with Roosevelt in Washington soon after Pearl Harbor. He said he asked Roosevelt for a "sacred compact" not to sign a separate peace with Nazi Germany, Italy or Japan until their total defeat.

He quoted Roosevelt's parting words as "trust me to the bitter end."

Reporting to the British cabinet after conferring with Roosevelt and Stalin at Yalta in February, 1945, Churchill said "I had a very great feeling that the Russians were anxious to work harmoniously with the two English-speaking democracies."

He described Stalin as "a person of great power, in whom I had every confidence."

"I DO not think he would embark on any adventures, but I cannot deny that much rests on Stalin's life," Churchill reported.

Curiously, Churchill's report contained no reference to Roosevelt's health, although official photographs taken at Yalta showed he looked thin and haggard. He died less than two months later.

There were frequent references to Stalin's charges that the Western allies planned a peace deal behind his back.

In January, 1944, Churchill said in a personal message to Stalin "what makes (these charges) so injurious is that we cannot understand them. I am sure that you know that I would never negotiate with Germany separately."

ON APRIL 5, 1945, Churchill told the British cabinet Stalin had fired off an angry cable to Roosevelt charging the West with carrying on secret negotiations in Switzerland for the surrender of all German forces in Italy. He said Roosevelt replied repudiating the charge "in strong terms" and expressing "resentment" at them.

The documents showed that in February, 1942, the United States and Britain sought an agreement with the Soviets on post-war co-operation. But Stalin insisted the West first must recognize Soviet annexation of the Baltic states and parts of Finland and Romania.

Roosevelt, they showed, made a personal bid to get Stalin to drop these claims.

But soon afterwards the British Embassy in Washington cabled London "the attempt to move Stalin on the Russian frontier question has been unavailing."

THE DOCUMENTS cast new light on the troubles Roosevelt and Churchill had with the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle when he was World War II Free French leader.

In November, 1942, Roosevelt said in a personal message to Churchill "in regard to De Gaulle I have hitherto enjoyed a quiet satisfaction in leaving him in your hands. Apparently, I have now acquired a similar problem in brother Giraud."

This was a reference to Gen. Henri Giraud who feuded bitterly with De Gaulle over leadership of French forces after the 1942 allied invasion of North Africa.

He added that Adm. Jean Darlan, Vichy French leader in North Africa, also was a problem.

"THE PRINCIPAL thought to be driven home to all three of these prima donnas is that the situation today is solely in the military field," Roosevelt said.

Churchill replied that Britain "has quite definite

Himmler asked deal with allies

LONDON (UPI) — Heinrich Himmler, Adolf Hitler's secret police boss, tried to make a secret peace deal with the Western allies shortly before Nazi Germany's collapse in April, 1945, World War II British government documents disclosed Friday.

HE WAS told bluntly any surrender must be made to the Red Army too, the documents revealed.

The peace bid was reported by the British minister in Stockholm in a telegram to the British cabinet.

It said he and the U.S. minister had been informed of it by Swedish Foreign Minister Christian Gunther, who was accompanied by Count Folke Bernadotte, a cousin of the present Swedish King Gustaf V Adolf and Erik Boheman, at that time secretary general of the Swedish foreign ministry.

It said Bernadotte told them he had just returned from Luebeck, in North Germany, where he met Himmler on April 24, 1945. Bernadotte quoted Himmler as saying Hitler was "mortally ill" from a brain hemorrhage and could not live more than two days.

He said Himmler told him he was in a "position of full authority" and authorized Bernadotte to inform the Swedish government he wished to meet Allied Supreme Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to arrange surrender of all German forces on the Western front.

Himmler told Bernadotte he would arrange for German troops in occupied Denmark and Norway to surrender to U.S., British or Swedish troops.

Bernadotte said Himmler said he hoped to continue resistance against the Red Army. He said he hoped American and British troops would occupy Mecklenburg province in North Germany in order to save the civilian population from the Russians.

THE REPORT said the U.S. and Britain told Bernadotte to reply that the Germans would have to surrender to all the allies, including the Soviets, simultaneously.

Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill, the documents showed, ordered that Stalin be informed at once so he would not suspect a Western peace deal behind his back, as he had done several times during World War II.

Even Big Ben had to stand still last night

LONDON (UPI) — Time stood still at midnight Friday in London and the rest of the world as well in honor of the atomic age.

Officials at the headquarters of the General Post Office said standard clocks all over the world — including Big Ben — halted for exactly 1-10 of a second at midnight (4 p.m. PST).

The reason: To bring Greenwich Mean Time precisely 10 seconds behind international atomic time, as measured by clocks powered by the natural vibrations of atomic systems.

Atomic clocks keep time to within one second's accuracy every 150,000 years. Greenwich Mean Time is subject to variance, officials said, because the earth's rotation keeps speeding up and slowing down.

Greenwich Mean Time is measured at the meridian of zero degrees longitude, which cuts through Greenwich, just east of London.

Irish refused to help fight Nazis

LONDON (UPI) — Immediately after Pearl Harbor Britain tried to get neutral Southern Ireland to enter World War II on the Allied side, British government documents of the time showed Friday.

Among the documents was the summary of a telegram sent Dec. 8, 1941, by the late Winston S. Churchill, Britain's World War II prime minister, to Eamonn De Valera, prime minister of Southern Ireland at the time.

THE TELEGRAM said now was Southern Ireland's chance to come into the war on the Allied side. Churchill offered to meet De Valera at any time to discuss the request.

De Valera replied he feared such action would cause trouble with Irish Republic extremists, but he invited Churchill to visit Dublin to confer with him.

BUT CHURCHILL was just on the point of leaving for Washington to meet the President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He told the British cabinet he planned to ask Roosevelt to put pressure on the De Valera government to join the Allies.

In his place, Churchill sent Lord Cranborne, a member of his government — now Marquess of Salisbury — to Dublin.

Churchill told him to tell the Irish government that if it declared war on Germany there should be a period of a month beforehand during which Britain would do its best to bring Irish defenses up to the level of those of Britain herself.

BUT CRANBORNE returned from Dublin to report there was no change in Ireland's neutrality policy.

Russ claim they protected China from U.S. A-bombs

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Weekly, Russia's official publication in London, said Friday the Kremlin has on four occasions prevented the United States from carrying out a nuclear threat against Red China, including during the Chinese revolution in 1949.

The article was the latest attack on the policies of the Mao Tse-tung regime in Peking.

The Chinese "prefer to forget that the U.S.A. has repeatedly threatened to use nuclear weapons against China and only failed to do so because it was scared of Soviet nuclear power," Soviet Weekly said.

The magazine said even the success of the Chinese revolution was done, in part, to the fact that the U.S. did not dare bomb China for fear of Soviet retaliation.

THE MAGAZINE said the U.S. also threatened a nuclear attack on China during the Korean War of 1950-53. But when dozens of U.S. planes were shot down — with Soviet aid — the U.S. government thought again.

"There was another very real threat of American nuclear attack in 1958 when there was the danger of a clash in the Taiwan Straits," Soviet Weekly added. "Again, because of firm Soviet support for its ally, the danger was averted."

Later, during the war in Indochina, U.S. military leaders threatened repeatedly to use nuclear weapons "even against China."

"The only reason they have not done so is the policy and military strength of the U.S.S.R.," the Weekly said.

THE SOVIET publication did not mention charges by Peking over the past year or two of alleged Soviet military threats to China, including nuclear.

In fact, Moscow's propaganda — as it took a harder anti-China line during the armed clashes on the Sino-Soviet border — reminded the Mao regime pointedly of Soviet nuclear power and missiles capable of carrying the attack into the heart of its enemies' territories.

The Soviets have moved rockets into the Far East, along the Sino-Soviet border and have been reliably reported to have deployed a ring of missiles in Mongolia, on the border of China's Singkiang Province where her key nuclear plant and testing grounds are located.

THE CHINESE, in return, deployed medium range rockets along their border with Russia.

The Sino-Soviet conflict significantly originated to some extent over a change of heart by Russia, when then premier Nikita Khrushchev reneged on a commitment to supply China with atom bombs.

President wishes for peace, prosperity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon returned from Florida Friday for a New Year's Eve celebration with his family, wishing for prosperity at home and peace abroad in 1972.

The President ended a five-day stay in Key Biscayne and flew back to Andrews Air Force Base with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Mrs. Rogers and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. Before landing, Nixon went in the lounge of the plane and wished Hoover, who will be 77 today, a happy birthday. The crew of the President's plane baked a cake and presented it to Hoover.

In Key Biscayne, the President issued New Year's greetings through an aide.

"His wishes for the nation and for the world are well known," acting White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said when asked to relay Nixon's new year's hopes.

"He certainly wants... prosperity at home and

Nixon asks Romanian trade gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, in a bid to improve trade relations with Romania, is supporting legislation that would grant most-favored-nation status to the Communist nation.

The administration's position, a change from its previous attitude, was set forth in a letter to Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., who has introduced a bill that would authorize most-favored-nation trade status for Romania.

THE GRANTING of such status puts nations on an equal footing in bringing their goods into the United States. Countries without it have to pay higher entry fees. Poland and Yugoslavia are the only Communist countries with most-favored-nation status now.

Findley first introduced his bill in 1969 after Nixon returned from a world tour that included a friendly reception in Bucharest, the Romanian capital. No action has been taken on it, however, largely because the administration failed to respond to a request from Congress for its views on the bill.

Findley Thursday released a copy of the letter he received from Asst. Secretary of State David M. Abshire urging the enactment of the bill.

"The President believes that enactment of such legislation would improve commercial relations for the benefit of American business and would demonstrate our willingness to foster the further expansion of U.S.-Romanian economic relations," Abshire said.

FINDLEY, an advocate of expanded East-West trade, also has introduced a bill that would grant most-favored-nation status to all Communist countries. Abshire said the administration wants to study the matter further before taking any position on that bill.

Findley said administration support of most-favored-nation status for Romania "is a commendable initiative toward a country which has demonstrated a fierce independence as a separate nation within the Warsaw Pact."

Firm burglarized

A burglar who cut a front door padlock to enter the Roberts Marine Service Co., at 700 Henry Ford Ave., took an outboard engine and tools valued at $350, Long Beach police said Friday.

peace abroad," Warren said.

Nixon is scheduled to fly to San Clemente, perhaps Monday, to prepare for meetings at the Western White House Thursday and Friday with Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato. The talks will be another in a series of summit conferences Nixon has held in advance of his forthcoming trips to Peking and Moscow.

Nixon, accompanied by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, left Homestead Air Force Base at 4:13

p.m. for the flight back to Washington.

Hoover, who celebrates his 77th birthday Saturday, was in Florida for a mid-winter vacation.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security advisor, who had been out of sight all week, left earlier in the day and flew to New York to be with his family," Warren reported.

The White House announced earlier in the week that Kissinger was ill with the flu. The last time a Kissinger illness was reported, the presidential advisor was on a secret trip to China.

During his Florida stay, the President held two days of meetings with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and pledged he would not make any secret deals for a reduction of American troops in Europe during his visits to the Communist capitals.

Nixon will be interviewed at 9:30 p.m. Sunday night on CBS television in his first televised question-and-answer session with any newsmen since June.

Newsman Dan Rather will be the only questioner Sunday.

With the beginning of the election year, Nixon can be expected to increase his political activity. The President would prefer to postpone a formal announcement of candidacy as long as possible but his political strategists have warned against skipping any of the primaries.

A Nixon-for-president group, operating with the President's approval but not his formal acknowledgment, is expected to enter his name in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary. The group, headed by former Gov. Lane Dwinell, probably will file early next week.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson stayed out of the primaries and suffered a crushing psychological blow when his stand-in candidate won only a narrow victory over former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn.

Mrs. Nixon to receive Liberia's top honor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon will be presented the cordon of the Order of the Pioneer, Liberia's highest decoration when she attends the inauguration of President William R. Tolbert next week.

The award will be presented to the President's wife at a pre-inaugural reception at the executive mansion in Monrovia Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Nixon is set to depart tonight from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., aboard a presidential jet, on an eight-day tour of West Africa. She will head the U.S. delegation to the Tolbert inauguration and also will visit Ghana and the Ivory Coast.

President Nixon planned to give her a formal send-off, attended by high-ranking government and diplomatic dignitaries.

Holiday deaths running lower than expected

The New Year's holiday period got into full swing with relative safety on the nation's highways Friday. But the most dangerous hours were yet to be passed.

Kansas cops nab 2 Calif. fugitives

By TODD FINEBERG
Staff Writer

Two escapees from a California Youth Authority camp were arrested Friday in Wichita by the Kansas Highway Patrol on suspicion of kidnapping a Los Angeles man in Garden Grove, robbing him and fleeing the state in his car.

The victim, Andrew Dobrovolsky, 35, a computer machinery salesman, told police he was kidnapped by two men while eating lunch in his car in Garden Grove Wednesday.

They drove him to Corona, where they stopped at a liquor store and he made his escape, police said.

Jailed on suspicion of armed robbery, auto theft and kidnapping were James R. Hunt, 18, and David St. Onge, 19, who had escaped from a youth authority camp at Ventura, police said.

The Kansas Highway Patrol discovered the two men when they made a routine check on the car.

Auto death-rate percentage drops

CHICAGO (UPI) — The traffic-death rate of persons killed per vehicle-miles traveled reached an all-time low in the United States during 1971, according to preliminary figures released Saturday by the National Safety Council.

Council President Howard Pyle said that 55,000 persons died in traffic mishaps during the year, which was 200 more than in 1970. But the death rate, figured as the number of persons killed per 100 million vehicle miles traveled, was 4.7, compared to 4.9 in 1970, a decrease of a 4 per cent.

The council attributed part of the decreased percentage to the addition of four-million motor vehicles and three-million licensed drivers to the nation's highways in 1971.

"From the number of traffic deaths that continue to take place, it should be obvious that adequate solutions to traffic safety problems are not being provided," Pyle said.

"When the landmark Highway Safety Act of 1966 became law, $267 million jaunted with an estimated 75,000 visitors.

Many Americans — the National Safety Council estimated 400 to 500 — will be killed in traffic accidents, and motorists everywhere were warned not to drive while drunk.

Many restaurants and police departments offered free coffee for celebrants who have to drive, and police announced strict surveillance of roads in most areas.

Canadian police were equipped with extra breath analyzers and the authorities said suspected drunk drivers would complete their evening inflating balloons used for testing sobriety at police stations.

UNITED Nations Secretary-General U Thant said "mankind is progressing

A United Press International count at 8 p.m. PST showed 92 persons dead in traffic accidents since the 78-hour holiday period began at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The overall breakdown of holiday accidental deaths:

Traffic	92
Fires	4
Miscellaneous	5
Total	101

California had nine traffic fatalities in the early count and Florida had seven. Four deaths occurred in Mississippi, Ohio, Oklahoma and Texas.

A 7-year-old Compton girl and a 41-year-old Lakewood man were killed in separate traffic accidents.

Arlene Perrell was pronounced dead at 3:15 p.m. at the Gardena Memorial hospital after she was struck by an auto in the street in the front of her home at 15723 Visalia Ave. The driver was not cited.

Donald L. McCormick, 2143 Silva St., died in Memorial Hospital in Long Beach at 9:25 a.m. of injuries suffered in an accident two hours before.

Police said his car struck a light pole on Harding street east of Atlantic avenue.

The National Safety Council had estimated in advance that from 400 to 500 persons might die in auto accidents before the end of the New Year's holiday period at midnight Sunday.

Confetti means business

A year-end tradition of dumping ticker tape, confetti and other waste paper out of office windows in the Los Angeles financial district provided a New Year's bonanza to some enterprising employees of a brokerage house. They discovered a vast quantity of computer cards had been thrown out by a firm specializing in proxy solicitations. The cards, normally confidential, listed names of shareholders and their holdings, providing the industrious brokers with leads to possible new accounts.

Arms plan for Pakistan U.S. top secrets' leak probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said Friday a security investigation is under way to find out who "leaked" to a columnist inside information about White House strategy sessions early this month concerning the India-Pakistan conflict.

The officials, who declined to be identified by name, voiced concern about the publication of the material by columnist Jack Anderson.

Anderson columns have been quoted from what Anderson says are classified reports. They deal in part with suggestions by some administration officials that some countries such as Jordan be allowed to transfer U.S.-furnished arms to Pakistan.

The administration did not engage in such transfers, and maintained its embargo on weapons deliveries to Pakistan.

Some of Anderson's material is said to come from meetings of the special action group that deliberated U.S. India-Pakistan policy at the White House during the first days of December.

The group is led by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, head of the White House National Security Council staff, and includes senior representatives from concerned agencies such as the State Department, the Defense Department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mom denies war-atrocity claims made by AWOL son

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — The mother of a young expatriate who said he deserted the Army after seeing the horrors of war said Friday her son may have been "over-exaggerating" his accounts of war atrocities in seeking to justify his antiwar beliefs.

David B. Johnson, 26, now lives in Paris, where he said in an interview he has "learned to be ashamed of being an American."

He said atrocities he witnessed in Vietnam in 1968 turned him against the war and the Army. He said he walked away from the military penitentiary at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. where he was serving a four-year sentence for being absent without leave.

The woman, identified by the Tacoma News-Tribune as Johnson's mother, declined use of her name because of "embarrassing" publicity she said resulted from Johnson's earlier antiwar activities.

She told the News-Tribune she and her son are very close and said Johnson telephoned her Dec. 26 from Paris, where she said he told her he is employed caring for children of Americans.

The woman said events Johnson described in the interview in Paris were "overexaggerating." She later was accepted by the Army at an East Coast city.

Johnson said he had changed his mind about the war after receiving a Bronze Star and several commendations for bravery, finally leaving Vietnam on a stretcher after being badly wounded in 1960. Johnson's mother said her son had been wounded and brought home "a string of medals."

Younger defers school tax fight

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The landmark California Supreme Court decision that the state's system of property taxes for schools is unconstitutional will not be appealed "at this time," Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger announced Friday.

Younger had made the decision after studying a clarification of the court's ruling, and after consulting with state officials who were defendants in the class action filed by parents of several children attending Los Angeles public schools.

He said the court's clarification pointed out that the decision was not a final ruling on the merits of the case, that it was being returned to Los Angeles Superior Court for trial and that property taxes collected in the meantime will not be affected.

Younger said a decision on whether to appeal the issue to the U.S. Supreme Court will not be made until further proceedings in court.

The court ruled 6-1 Aug. 30 that the present system of using property taxes to help finance schools violates the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution. The court held the current system makes the quality of a child's education a function of the wealth of his parents and neighbors.

Triangle slayer given probation

A 24-year-old Lakewood man who pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter in the love-triangle killing of a Marine last June got probation instead of prison Friday in Long Beach Superior Court.

Guy Austin Coover originally was sentenced to five years in state prison, but Judge Roy J. Brown suspended that sentence in favor of five years probation.

The judge in his decision said that in the initial moment of the June 20 shooting incident — in which the Marine, Richard Thomas, 21, was killed — Coover was acting in "legitimate self-defense."

But fear drove Coover to over-react, firing again and again at Thomas in a dispute over the Marine's ex-wife, 19-year-old Jan Thomas, Brown said. That forced the voluntary manslaughter conviction, the judge ruled.

Thomas died of bullet wounds in the head, shoulder, abdomen and legs. He was shot outside his ex-wife's apartment, at 5579 Langport Ave.

Coover and Mrs. Thomas told police that the Marine, stationed at El Toro Marine Air Station, broke into the apartment while they were sleeping, but left when Coover ordered him out.

The shooting occurred, the couple told police, when they later attempted to leave the apartment with Mrs. Thomas' baby and Thomas advanced on them with a kitchen knife.

Ex-officer Daugherty named to youth post

William A. Daugherty, a former member of the Long Beach police force, Friday was named administrative officer to the California Youth Authority Board.

Daugherty, 46, who was born in Long Beach, has served 12 years with the authority, the last 5½ as assistant director. He succeeds Paul J. McKusick, who retired after 30 years with the agency.

Daugherty joined the Long Beach Police Department in 1952 and was assigned to the juvenile bureau. Eight years later became CVA consultant to local law enforcement agencies on the problem of juvenile control.

In 1966, Daugherty moved to Sacramento to become assistant to the director. He reviewed and helped develop legislative programs of interest to the Youth Authority.

JUDGE VASEY RETIRES

Friday marked the last day on the bench for Judge Beach Vasey, who has presided in Department E of Long Beach Superior Court since 1953. Vasey was appointed by former Gov. Earl Warren, who had just been named chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. The 67-year-old Vasey served four years as deputy city attorney, 12 years as a Los Angeles deputy county counsel and nine years as Warren's legislative secretary before appointment to the bench. His retirement takes effect officially on Jan. 15.

2 peninsula parks get development priority

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

County officials have been ordered to give top priority to development of Friendship and Shoreline Parks in Palos Verdes Peninsula.

On motion of Supervisor Burton Chace the board directed officials to complete engineering studies and preliminary plans for the two parks by June 30 so that construction funds can be budgeted in the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The board also approved the appointment of planning engineers, Quinton Budlong, to assist in the planning because of geological problems relating to slide areas at the two park sites.

Chace called for the 128-acre Friendship Park, lying north of Amiranle Drive on the boundary between Palos Verdes Peninsula and San Pedro, to be developed primarily as a nine-hole golf course.

Initial plans at the 53-acre Shoreline Park lying south of 25th Street adjacent to the San Pedro-Peninsula boundary, call for picnic sites overlooking the ocean and possible overnight camping areas.

Chace told board members the development projects have the full support of various civic groups including the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce, the San Pedro Elks Club and the El Prado Homeowners' Association.

The two parks, bought by the county in the early 60s, have remained undeveloped for more than 10 years.

County asked to approve pact with Lomita

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors have been asked to approve a pact with the City of Lomita for acquiring rights-of-way for the widening of Western Avenue between Pacific Coast Highway and Palos Verdes Drive North.

In a report Friday, Road Commissioner J. R. Morhar said Lomita is to deposit $9,500 with the county to cover the cost of acquisitions within that city's limits. He said the county will be responsible for the acquisition program.

Supervisors are to act on the matter Tuesday.

To fight bad air Car pooling, gas rationing said essential

By GILBERT BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Bad air will continue to be a fact of life in the Los Angeles Basin for at least a decade, the state's top experts in air pollution have declared.

As a result the group, the technical advisory committee to the State Air Resources Board, is proposing what it terms as "societal" options, including:

- Forced car pooling;
- Gasoline rationing;
- Limitations on parking;
- Staggered work hours.

"In addition to the many technological proposals and programs for the reduction of emissions from vehicles and stationary sources, it is essential to consider certain aspects of modern urban living in terms of their impact on air quality," the committee said in a December report to its parent State Air Resources Board.

THE REPORT is particularly important because the State Air Resources Board is currently drafting a federally required proposal to end air pollution within the Los Angeles Basin by 1975-76.

The conclusions in that proposal can be mandated by the Air Resources Board, overruling such bodies as the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

In addition to the immediate steps, the report from the technical advisory committee said long term solutions to smog problems can lie only with new land use standards.

"It must be emphasized that the overriding concept involved in this kind of land use planning is that air quality which would prevent health defects must be met and maintained, and that economic considerations or other considerations are secondary to the achievement of such air quality," the report said.

"This is the goal for which air pollution control programs must be aimed, and it is one which must be reached if the dictum of the state and federal governments relative to meeting air quality standards is to be achieved," the report concluded.

"THE CONCEPT of unrestricted growth which has been with us for a long time, should give way to the concept of growth consistent with improving the environment," the report added.

On a short term basis the technical advisory committee recommended car pooling as one of the easiest and least costly methods of reducing air pollution.

An increase of the number of persons in cars from an average of 1.2 to more than two persons could cut auto air pollution in half.

The report noted control of used-car pollution would cost $50 million, but car pooling would be almost without cost.

"Common sense would dictate serious consideration of a program which would accomplish the same results at a savings to the taxpayers, compared to one which would involve expenditures in excess of $50 million," the report said.

Both gasoline rationing, with cars carrying more than two persons getting more gasoline, and control of parking could be used to enforce car pooling, the report said.

Fixed parking places would be assigned to cars used in car pooling while other cars would not be allowed to park.

A reduced work week and staggered working hours could also help limit air pollution, options which the report noted "appear most likely to gain public acceptance."

Again, expenditures would be limited in such programs. However, the reduction in emission of pollutants would be less than car pooling, according to the report.

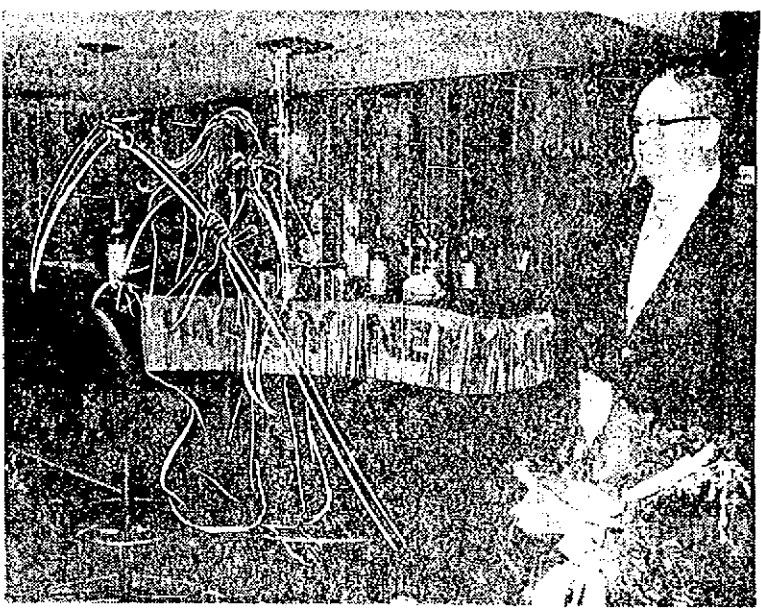

FINALLY, THE REPORT noted the conflict between increased demands for electrical energy and air pollution control.

"So long as most of this power must be generated through the combustion of fossil-fuels any increase in its quantity can only increase the emissions of air contaminants from this source," the report said.

"Wherever possible, reduction in demand for electrical energy should be actively pursued and householders, commercial establishments and industry, especially, should be educated to more conservative use of electricity," it added.

The report suggested limitations on the number of dishwashers, toasters, driers and other electrical appliances and proposed lower electrical rates for lower consumption instead of the present practice which sees rates decline with consumption.

Immediate construction of nuclear power plants was also advocated.

TIME TAKES THE DOCKET

Patther Time took ownership of The Docket Tavern Friday from Attorney Charles F. Legeman. Legeman was there to remove a few books and mementos before the bulldozers come. The property will be leveled for a parking lot for the county courthouse. The Docket was probably the only bar in Long Beach that wasn't open late at night. It closed by 7 p.m. and was closed on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays — whenever the courts were closed. It was a regular meeting place for lawyers, private detectives, police detectives, newspapermen and public relations men.

'Reds don't like us,' Lions' president says

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

Are Negroes excluded from Lions Clubs? Will women ever be accepted as members? Why aren't there any Lions clubs in Communist countries?

The president of Lions International — largest service club in the world — answers such questions every day. And it was with an air of resignation that Robert J. Uplinger answered them again Friday in a Long Beach interview.

The rotund, 59-year-old engineer from Syracuse, N.Y., was guest of honor at a New Year's Eve dinner party aboard the Queen Mary. Today he'll be at the Rose Bowl for the Michigan-Stanford football game.

IN HIS SIX months as president, he has traveled around the world and been interviewed countless times, on occasion in Communist countries. Gone are the days, he said, when the questions were about the Boy Scouts and Pancake breakfast.

"What I told them in Chile is this," he said, recalling a moment when reporters were particularly rough on him:

"We had one of the largest Lions Clubs in the world in Havana until Castro took over. He liquidated it. There are no Lions Clubs in Communist countries because everything has to be approved by the government and they won't approve the Lions, mostly I think because they don't approve anything that encourages more than three people to get together."

"About Negroes. There is no bar to the Negro in Lions Clubs. Usually, a given club's membership reflects the customs of its region. In my Syracuse district, the district governor is a Negro."

"About women. The women in our auxiliary do a fine job. There isn't any likelihood Lions are going to admit women anymore than the women's service clubs are going to admit men. It just isn't practical."

Lions, he said, see themselves as middle of the roaders. "We're not hard bound conservatives, and we're not extreme liberals either."

said service clubs are no longer relevant, are losing their appeal to the young and risking extinction.

Uplinger took exception.

"Our rate of growth has never been higher," he said. "Around the world, we increased by 22,000 in October. We'll hit a million members in all in more than 25,500 clubs this year."

Appealing to the young, he said, are the Leo Clubs the organization has formed for high school students.

"THEY'RE NOT all becoming Lions by any means," Uplinger said. "But they're being given programs on such things as ecology and being introduced to public service. They're really taken to it. In some places they're simply taking off, leaving the adults behind."

Golden wedding

50 years and they're happy

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Ed and Elizabeth Wells entertained a handful of people on New Year's Eve. But the celebration had nothing to do with "out with the old and in with the new." Just the opposite.

At 8 p.m., Dec. 31, 1921, Ed Wells married Elizabeth Donaldson-Selby, of Canada, in Portland, Ore. Friday night they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Ed, who'll be 90 in February, and his wife were hosts to their daughter, two newsmen, a half-dozen nurses and a roommate in Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where Ed is recuperating from recent surgery.

Ed was a little surprised at all the fuss. He apparently hadn't expected it. There was a stuffy moment while his wife stood at his bedside and their daughter, Mrs. Nancy McAllister, of Portland, passed around pieces of the anniversary cake and glasses of pink punch.

MRS. FLORA TY, a nurse recruited to cut the cake, was a little flustered at getting her picture taken. She began to giggle, and the attitude was infectious.

She made Ed promise he wasn't on a diet before she'd give him a piece of his cake. Everybody laughed. "Are you happy now, Mr. Wells?" asked Mrs. Ty, giggling again.

"Oh yes," he answered. Then, in a second thought for the 50 years he was celebrating, Ed added, "For a long time now."

He'll be returning to the couple's Long Beach home for the past 20 years, at 2113 Montair Ave., in four or five days, according to nurses.

"It's good that he'll be able to come home," said Mrs. Wells. "Yes it is. I need him."

EARLY WINNERS IN L.B. BRIDGE PLAY CITED

The Long Beach unit of the American Contract Bridge League interrupted the 13th annual Holiday Championships at the Rochel Convention Center to celebrate New Year's Eve and to announce some of the winners in the five-day tournament.

Tournament Chairman Warren Mitchell said 40 teams were competing in the Knockout Team Championships for the Sam and Mary Block Trophy.

Joan Colby and Bob Hastings won the Clarence E. Mills trophy in the Open Pairs Championship Thursday.

Bruce Packard and James Nicola were second with Alan Bell and Marty Shalton, third.

Victor Touriel and Sam Wilson won the Pauline Sayre trophy Friday by beating Ron and Shirley Goldenson, second, and Long Beach's Guin Womack and Al Masterson, third, in the Masters Pairs Championships.

The Janet Siegel trophy went to C. Roberts and Stanton Gee for winning the 49er Pairs Championship matches. Fred and Jeanne Dearman of Long Beach won second-place honors.

Mitchell said events for junior players were scheduled for the first time this year to allow less experienced players to compete with those of similar experience.

Men's and Women's Pairs Championships are scheduled today along with Life Masters Pairs Championships, the top ranking for members of the bridge league. There will also be separate events for non-life masters and another junior championship, Mitchell said.

Supervisors urged to renew Catalina lease

From Our L.A. Bureau

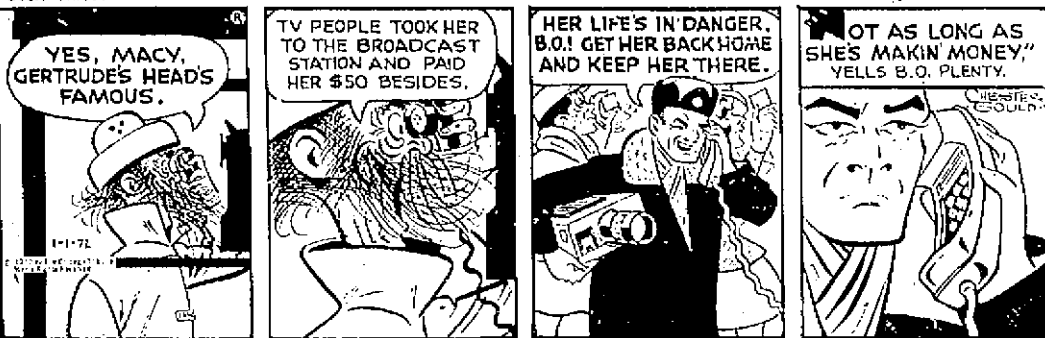

Supervisors have been urged to renew a 10-year lease with the Santa Catalina Island Co. for rental of a building housing a county court, library and public health clinic.

Victor Adorian, director of the department of real estate management, said the monthly rental for the building at 215 Summer Ave., Avalon, is $1,475.

He said his department feels the rent is as fair now as it was when the county first entered a 10-year agreement with the company in 1961.

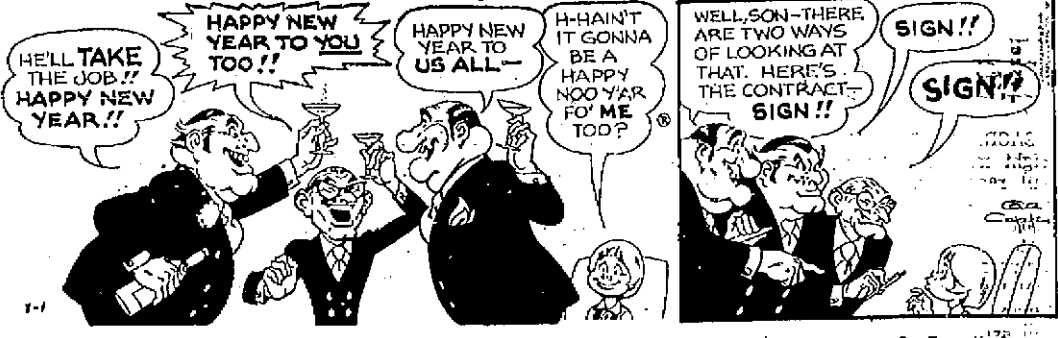

Adorian said the various county departments using the building have requested the continued tenancy. He said the original agreement expires March 31, 1972.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Novel solutions to all questions you up this year. Expedients come so readily that you must analyze constantly to avoid straying from your true long-term goals. Today's natives tend to seek extreme personal experiences.

Aries (March 21-April 19): No adjustment you make now will suit more than one or two people, so quietly do what appeals to you most.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): What you have gathered, hold onto, add to your reserves. What has eluded your search, put out of your mind.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): An early start is helpful, as there may be a passing moment of confusion in the midst of the day's activity.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Take stock of your home, property, possessions. Where changes or improvements suggest themselves, begin considering tentative plans.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 21): Be early and bright to show up well in your share of community customs and observances. Then remove yourself from the center of events and rest.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 22): You'll find others expect much of you this busy Sunday. Pace your activities to give yourself moments for thought and general evaluations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Review your home arrangements, plan changes, modifications. If you own anything in the "white elephant" category, begin a search for somebody who wants it.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): In the course of your social rounds of visiting and casual amenities you may find a puzzling view of yourself subtly expressed.

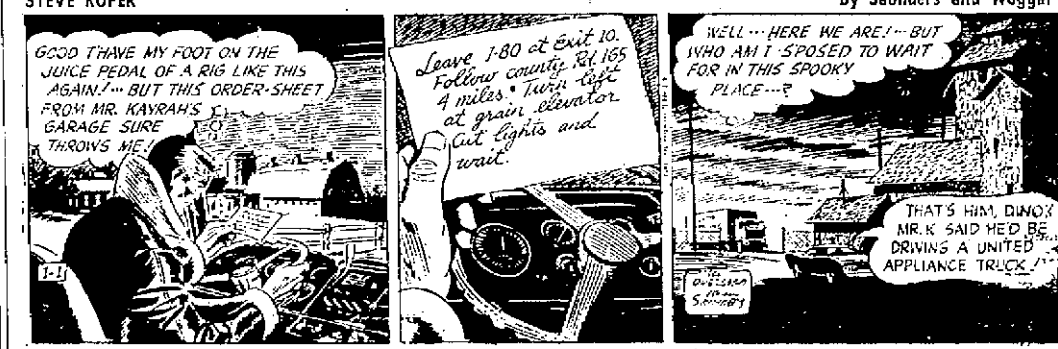

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now is the time to check your budget, career plans, and review your available resources.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): For you the traditions of the New Year come alive to the extent you let them. Be open and alive.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Turning a corner, symbolically, is the likely expression of your life today.

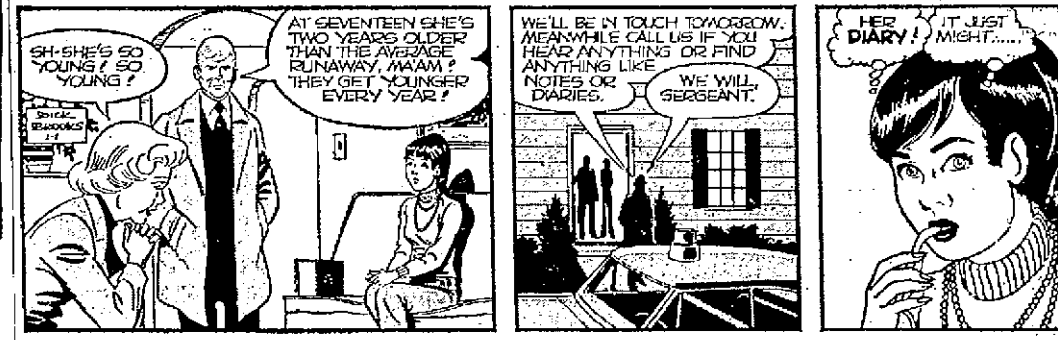

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your good will and sense of community are much needed in bridge gaps between you and the people about you.

State withholding tax deductions start today

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Eight million Californians will receive another dent in their take-home pay starting today when the state begins withholding the personal income tax.

At the same time, candy eaters and gum chewers will get an $18 million tax break but consumers of take-out hot foods such as fried chicken and tacos will pay another $23.4 million in state sales taxes.

Withholding is the key element of a $501 million tax program passed by the Legislature Dec. 7 and signed by Gov. Reagan. The governor abandoned his long opposition to withholding two years ago and since then has advocated its enactment.

For a married couple with a weekly income of $175 and two children, 80 cents will be withheld. The tax jumps to $1.60 on income of $200, to $3.40 on $250, to $4.60 on $280 and $26.20 on an income of $580.

For a single person with a weekly income of $175, the tax withheld will be $4.20. It will increase to $5.90 on $200, to $8 on $230; to $9.60 on $250 and to $13.30 on $280.

THE withholding of income tax will ease a $310 million deficit in the current $6.8 billion state budget as well as provide a uniform flow of cash into state coffers throughout the year. The state now must borrow funds from banks to pay its bills during "dry" periods when state revenues slow to a trickle.

Effective today, the nickel-on-the-dollar statewide sales tax on candy and gum will be removed. This will cost the state $18 million in lost revenue.

But the loss will be more than offset by extending the statewide sales tax to all take-out hot foods sold at restaurants. This is expected to produce $23.4 million a year.

Currently, hot foods sold at such places as hamburger stands and chop suey shops are exempt from sales taxation if they are consumed off the premises, although many operators already charge the sales tax.

If a restaurant provides tables and chairs, and the food is consumed there, it is subject to taxation. The new law will remove the disparity between the two types of restaurants.

James McNeil, a tax expert for the State Department of Human Resources Development, said all but a few employers will start the withholding system today. He said the department received only a handful of requests for extensions and those came "from the large employer who has a computer problem."

State employees will find that their paychecks will have taxes withheld for December wages. "This is going to surprise some people," McNeil said.

During the first full year of withholding, Californians will pay 80 per cent more state income taxes.

The one-time extra expense will be caused by an abrupt speedup in tax collections as taxpayers convert from a lump sum payment system to pay-as-you-go.

To reduce an initial double burden, the Legislature provided for a 20 per cent credit on 1971 taxes, meaning that in April a man with a $100 tax liability will make a lump sum payment of $80 on income earned in 1971. Meantime, he simultaneously will be paying taxes through withholding on 1972 income.

Of states levying an income tax, California is the last to enact some form of payroll withholding.

State technicians have tried as closely as possible to approximate the employee's tax liability so he will not pay too much or too little through withholding.

Californians must claim the same number of exemptions — such as children — from state income tax withholding as they do from the federal withholding system.

State solons earn record sums in '71

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's lawmakers earned more, spent more and stayed in the capital longer during the 1971 session than ever before.

Champion earner of the legislature during 1971 was Assemblyman Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, who pulled down $34,081 in salary and expenses for the year.

By contrast, the top law-making wage earner during the 1970 session was then-Assembly Speaker Robert Monagan, R-Tracy, who received $26,382.

Legislators had a base salary of $10,000 during 1970, but that increased to $19,200 in 1971.

Most legislators also pulled down $30 a day in living expenses while in Sacramento or away from the capital on "legislative business." With a session that lasted 333 official days, that meant an extra $6,600 tax-free for each lawmaker who collected all his potential expense money. For lawmakers collecting both, the total would be $24,860.

EIGHT legislators refused to accept the $5-a-day raise in expense money granted early in the year. They stuck instead to the earlier daily expense rate of $25.

The expense payment must be waived if the lawmaker is away from Sacramento on personal business.

There are other benefits as well. Each lawmaker

State agency to try 10-hour, 4-day week

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Employees at two offices of the State Department of Human Resources Development (HRD) will begin working a 10-hour, four-day week on an experimental basis Monday.

James R. Lewis, an assistant HRD director, said the three-month-long experiment also will mean that the hours of service will be increased at the offices, the Long Beach Unemployment Insurance office and the Avalon-Florence HRD center in Los Angeles.

Lewis said one 10-hour shift of employees will work Monday through Thursday each week while another shift would have a Tuesday-through-Friday schedule. The employees have a 45-minute lunch period.

The Long Beach office will be opened from 7:15 a.m. to 6 p.m. while the other office's hours will be from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. They are currently open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The experiment offers the public the opportunity to use these offices earlier and later than usual each work day," Lewis said. "For the unemployed, the added hours may relieve congestion in the lobbies and waiting periods for counseling and testing services. For employers, it offers more hours each day for job orders and handling of insurance matters."

Lewis noted that several other state agencies, including the Parks and Recreation Department, have experimented with a four-day week. But he said the HRD experiment will be the first to involve a state field office "with heavy public contact."

The Parks and Recreation Department is currently evaluating its experiment to determine whether such a work schedule should be made permanent.

Bank reduces savings interest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crocker National Bank announced reductions Friday in the interest paid on most savings accounts, including a cut from 4½ to 4 per cent on regular passbook accounts.

The 4½ per cent rate had been in effect since Aug. 1. The cut followed a day the lowering by major California banks of their prime lending rate from 5½ to 5¼ per cent.

Rates on new three-month bonus passbook accounts were cut by a half per cent to a 4½ per cent.

Rates paid on fixed term savings certificates, which are offered in amounts of $500, will remain at 5 per cent for one-year certificates and 5¼ per cent for two-year certificates. Certificates with maturities of three, four and five years will no longer be offered.

Emmett G. Solomon, Crocker board chairman, said in announcing the reductions.

"Lending rates have been trending downward for the last six months of this year. In view of the sharp decline in bank lending rates, it was inevitable rates eventually would be reflected in the interest rates paid to depositors."

'Recovery' seen for state's economy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's economy is "moving ahead strongly from a recession low recorded in March" and will continue to gain in 1972, the State Department of Finance said Friday.

"The economic recovery now proceeding in California will continue during 1972 with strong gains in most sectors," the department said in its "California Economic Indicators" publication.

The department forecasts a drop in the unemployment rate from an average of 7 per cent in 1971 to 6.1 per cent in 1972.

IT SAID the personal income of Californians will rise by 8 per cent in 1972 with wages and salaries accounting for two-thirds of the gain. Higher contributions to Social Security will gobble up part of those fatter pay checks, the department added.

"Nearly every major sector in the economy will share in the 1972 expansion," the report predicted.

"The strongest gains will be recorded in the service, trade and local government components."

"Recent data indicate that the California economy is now moving ahead strongly from the recession low recorded in March. It now appears that the state economy experienced a relatively sharp V-shaped downturn rather than the saucer-type of recession indicated by data available prior to this time," the report said.

California's aerospace industry, in a tailspin since 1967, will hold its own in 1972 but not without some ups and downs, the report said.

"For the first time since 1967 the aerospace sector will not be a major offset to other economic gains," the department said.

"It now appears that defense contract awards to California firms will rise moderately from recent levels and that employment will generally be maintained for the year."

San Diego cabbies end strike

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The first strike of San Diego taxicab drivers in 32 years was ended Friday in time to accommodate New Year's Eve celebrations.

The taxi drivers' union voted 257-38 to accept a two-year contract offered by San Diego Yellow Cab, Inc.

Mayor Pete Wilson, who took office only three months ago, had intervened quietly, and was credited for bringing the drivers and employer together.

DESPITE Wilson's statement earlier that no promises were made concerning a possible rate increase for the city-regulated cabs, Mike Spadacini of the union negotiating committee said:

"We supported this contract with the expectation of a rate increase which is now before the City Council."

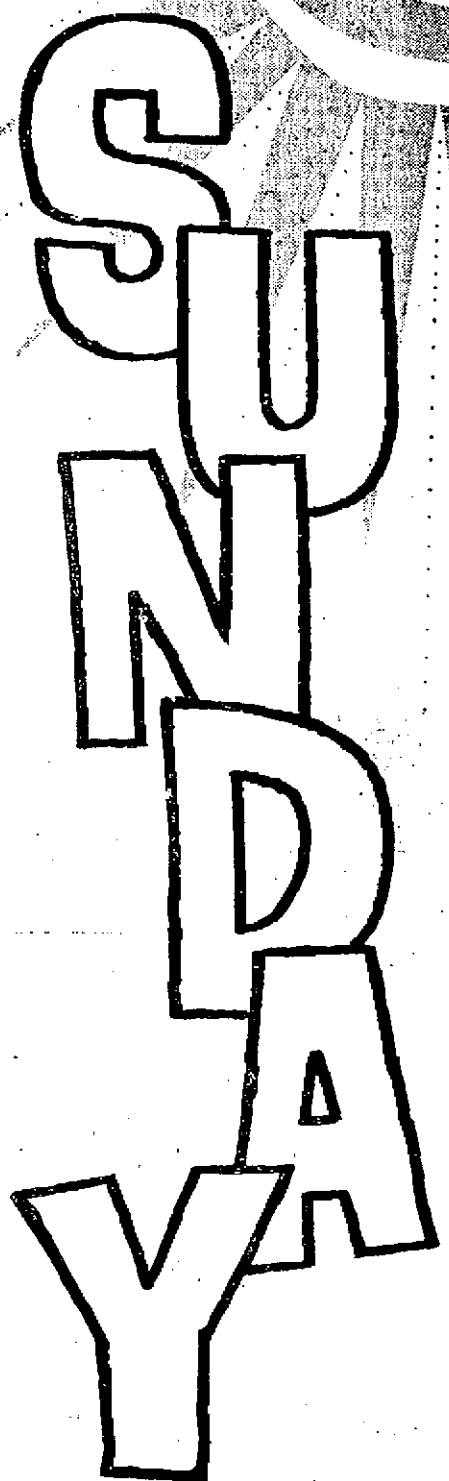

There was no change in the drivers' daily guarantee of $15 or 50 per cent of the fares, whichever is greater, Spadacini said. About three dozen non-union drivers hired during the four-day strike will be retained, a company spokesman said.

Wilson, 37, a former state assemblyman, said: "Both have yielded in their demands."

A FEDERAL mediator, John Taylor, said the mayor "filled a vital role in getting this thing settled. He saw what was being discussed and came up with something both sides ought to be able to live with."

Ed Allensworth, the union president, said, "It takes a lot of courage for a man who is a new mayor to come into anything as explosive as a cab strike."

Without Wilson, Yellow Cab President Bill Hilton said, "We probably would have had a lengthy strike on our hands."

Rostropovich returns: demonic, fiery, pure

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Mstislav Rostropovich, absent from Southland stages for more than two years, returned to The Music Center Thursday night to help the Los Angeles Philharmonic continue its twice-interrupted (once for the opera, and, again, last week, for the holiday) winter season.

And so, the legendary Russian cellist, whose permit to leave the Soviet Union had been revoked last season for ostensibly political reasons, is with us again. After two performances with the Philharmonic this week, he returns for recitals at UCLA and at The Music Center, January 21 and 23, respectively. It is a hopeful note with which to begin the new year.

For, how the man plays! With demonic fire and cherubic purity (and all at once), with a tone that speaks while singing, that roars and whispers and caresses, and in complete rapport with his listeners. And also with that rare brand of musical personality which communicates directly and needs no intermediaries.

In conjunction with Zubin Mehta and the Philharmonic, Rostropovich played not one, but two solo works on this all-Russian program. Tchaikovsky's "Rococo" Variations was his contribution to the first half, and the reading he gave may have been the neatest and most incisive we have heard of that charming but devilishly ungrateful work. It was certainly the most convincingly Tchaikovskian: mercurial, ebullient, inward-looking, frighteningly intense.

AND HE achieved an even higher level of intensity after intermission, with his playing of Shostakovich's Second Concerto (1966), a piece which had its local premiere — by Gayle Smith and the Glendale Symphony — only last Spring.

It is a grand and compelling work, bleakly beautiful, of fiendish difficulty for the soloist. It occupies two extended movements and 32 minutes with as much substance and fire as this composer ever invested in a work of comparable size — quite a lot, obviously.

Rostropovich played it, as, indeed, he plays everything, like one possessed. A few mechanical mishaps marred the performance's recordability (the influence of the full moon?), but the total effect was a stunning one. Unfortunately, the Russian virtuoso's way with this work only insures that others may not be able to find the courage to play it themselves. Mehta and the orchestra collaborated lovingly.

The rest of the program was undistinguished, though the Philharmonic displayed some of its better dynamic abilities in the "Khovanshchina" Prelude, the end of which was spoiled by some missing woodwind solos (Mehta was livid).

AND SRIABIN'S "Poem of Ecstasy" provided a vulgar intermezzo between Tchaikovsky and Shostakovich.

As he had when last he conducted it here (March, 1966), Mehta underlined its sexual allusions pertinently from the podium. And the Philharmonic made its most raucous noises at each of those explicit climaxes — three in 19 minutes is still impressive, even in this era of Portnovian frequencies, I guess.

But the piece is so cheap, so one-dimensional, so wilfully busy, the only ecstasy we can find in it is the relief that comes when it is concluded. Needless to say, having to hear it twice within seven seasons seems two times too often.

'Claire's Kneec best

The National Society of Film Critics voted "Claire's Kneec" the best picture of the year; Bernardo Bertolucci best director for "The Conformist"; Jane Fonda best actress for "Klute" and Peter Finch for best actor for "Sunday Bloody Sunday."

Celebrities set mark with '71 marriage-divorce ratio

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie town celebrities set an all-time high in 1971 for the marriage-divorce ratio with more than three times as many stars going their separate ways than exchanging vows.

Some did both during the old year.

Burt Ives and Jean Peters were among those who divorced and remarried within the 12-month period.

Perhaps Miss Peters' divorce from Howard Hughes was most newsworthy of all. So far as is known the ex-actress is the best source of information on the mysterious billionaire. And she's not talking now that she is Mrs. Stanley Hough, wife of a 20th Century-Fox studio executive.

A factor in the lagging Hollywood marriage rate is the growing number of entertainers who simply live together rather than march to the altar only to pay attorney fees a few years later.

Divorced or separated during 1971 were Ernest Borgnine (his fourth), Eddie Adams, Vera Miles, Red Skellton, Hope Lang, Rex Harrison, Tuesday Weld, Raquel Welch, George Peppard and Elizabeth Ashley, Donna Reed, Marge and Gower Champion, Vic Damone, Jack Jones, Barbara Streisand and Elliott Gould, Robert Wagner, and Edd Byrnes to name a few.

Steve McQueen and Natalie Wood both found their marriages asunder and began dating one another.

Among 1971's newlyweds were Peter Lawford and Mary Rowan, thus making Lawford the son-in-law of Dan Rowan. Sue Lyon got married. So did Bill Bixby, Jack Carter, Jennifer Jones and Norton Simon, and Dick Martin.

In any contest for making vital statistics news Patty Duke won hands down. Her marriage was annulled during the year just past and she also gave birth to a baby who she says belongs to Desi Arnaz Jr.

New parents included Mike Landon of "Bonanza," Ali McGraw of "Love Story," Richard Zanuck and Bob Newhart. Elizabeth Taylor became a grandmother.

GARDENING

FOUR O'CLOCKS TUBERS... Mirabilis Jalapa

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Four O'clocks (Mirabilis Jalapa) easily grow to about two feet high and wide. They bloom throughout the summer season. These old-fashioned plants with tubular shape blossoms open in the afternoon if the day is sunny, or all day if it is cloudy. The flowers are white, lilac, pink, red, or yellow, and often several colors may be found in varying degrees in the individual blossoms.

The plants die down at beginning of winter. Though considered annuals, they develop carrot-like tubers from which short but small roots grow. Those tubers vary in length. New plants grow out the following season from the tuber tops. Plants grow from scattered seeds, too.

We had to prepare an area of soil where these plants grew. The soil was matted with the tubers. We couldn't dig down deep enough to remove the largest one. We rooted it out with a crow bar. The tuber looked like a monster carrot. The top was about four inches in diameter and tapered 20 inches down to the tip which was an inch diameter size.

They should be grown at the back part of the yard where summer color is desired. Plants get by on minimum watering.

ONE OF THE QUESTIONS sometimes asked about New Zealand flax is, "how can a gardener propagate these shrubs?" The answer is that overly massive clump of New Zealand should be dug up and divided. This provides more plants to reset. The proper time to do it is in the spring season.

Another problem plant that vexes the gardeners patience is the Royal Bird of Paradise. It might grow four, six, nine years or more before it finally blooms. Such condition may be due to lack of sufficient deep watering, a lack of nourishment and annual mulching with manure.

The main reason for continued lack of blossoms is due to the old leaves being cut off close to the base of the plant. Such cutting should not be done unless the gardener is certain that there is no embryo flower spike within the hollow portion of the leaf stalk, or an embryo leaf. The old leaves must be cut off just above the leaf stalk where the hollow area begins.

We know of two blooming bird of paradise plants the plumber dug up to replace a rusted water pipe. The plants, which were the same size were then reset. Five years later the homeowner had us check one of them. It was stunted and didn't bloom whereas the other flowered. The stunted plant had been buried eight inches too deep!

Rye grass seed called outstanding

A horticulture teacher highly recommended Manhattan rye grass seed as the most outstanding of the rye grasses. It is a fairly new introduction. It sprouts quickly, continues to grow straight up, requires less seed coverage per thousand square feet, than most, stands heat, and is a perennial. Eight and a half pounds per thousand square feet was the recommendation.

CLUB NOTES

A program featuring the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram's "Action Line" will be presented to the Los Altos Garden Club at their monthly meeting in the Palo Verde Christian Church Hall on Wednesday, at 12:30 noon.

Philanthropic work of the club during the Christmas season included visits to the Metropolitan Hospital at Norwalk to decorate the hall and do gift wrapping for the patients. Charitable donations were made to the Sandlarks, Goodwill Industries and the Food Bank.

Long Beach Herb Society regular open meeting 3 p.m. January 8, Unitarian Church, 5450 Atherton. Lecture - demonstration "Grow Your Own Herbs" by Mrs. Florence Sann and Dr. Harvey Kendall.

Q. The accompanying leaf and berry stem of a plant has appeared in my flower garden for the past two years. We cannot identify it, and none of the nurseries have come up with an answer. Very fast growing, attained a height of 10 feet this spring. Trunk comprises one-to-one-and-a-quarter-inch stems and is reddish-brown. The berries are round and turn black when mature. The birds like the berries. A. E. Palmer.

A. — The leaf shape and texture, the berries on the stems, and the leaf stem, plus your description sounds like it could be rhubarb, a member of the rhubarb family. Rhubarb is pronounced (ree-um).

Q. — Our back yard plum tree is healthy and produces good plums nearly every year. Could you tell us how to implant a graft from an apricot tree so ours might also bear apricots, and maybe others? I have seen trees with plums, apricots and also other stone fruits on it. Please tell us how and when to do it? Mrs. E. Lowy.

A. — I'm saving your letter Mrs. Lowy, and will write part of one of March articles on grafting.

Briefly...

Church's New Year project, a sober warning, and Rex

Here's a New Year project. The church council at Our Saviour's Lutheran is recommending to the congregation the idea of "Reading the Bible Through in 1972." (And they didn't have to hire an advertising agency to come up with that title.)

The plan is to have members read three chapters of the Old Testament at home each day of the week, and five chapters of the New Testament on Sundays. Reminders of the assigned readings will be passed along, and summary outlines of the books will be sent to members through bulletins and mailings. This will help enrich the readings, "giving everyone the sense of the church-wide nature of the project.

Sounds terrific. Questions to Pastor Bjerke and staff: Will everybody use the same Bible? Are there provisions made for questions and give-and-take on interpretation and understanding? What about people going on vacation, leaving town for weekends, etc. Will they feel left out by falling behind on the readings?

FOR THE fifth annual period of peace to be celebrated by Roman Catholics beginning today, Pope Paul VI has chosen as the theme the Isaian formula: "If you want peace, work for justice."

A STRIKING warning to the "counter-culture" is contained in the first issue of "Process Studies," a theological and philosophical journal published at the School of Theology in Claremont.

Dr. John B. Cobb, Jr. and Dr. Lewis S. Ford, co-editors, who could scarcely be called conservatives, have this to say to those who seek reality only in immediate experience, and who challenge all the traditional structures of society:

"The Seventies do not belong to the counter-culture in any simple sense. The dominant culture will still be dominant and there are important respects in which it deserves to be. We cannot turn our backs upon our organizational, scientific and technological achievements, and we should not try to do so. If we allowed our heritage in these areas to collapse the world could support only a fraction of its present population."

"The unimaginable horrors of the accompanying anarchy might well lead to the annihilation of the human race — except that nothing like this will not be allowed. Long before such anarchy arose, we would all be subject to a rigid totalitarian government and probably be will-

Bible School in local church

Beginning with the new semester on Jan. 10th, the Southern California School of the Bible will meet in three locations including Monday nights at First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, Long Beach.

More than 25 Bible courses will be offered under the teaching of some of pastors and Bible teachers, including Dr. William W. Orr, teacher of the Radio School of the Bible. Classes are open to students from all churches, 7 to 9:15 p.m.

Dr. Orr says the classes are particularly helpful for new Christians and those who plan to enter Christian service as teachers, young people's leaders and missionaries. A certificate of credit is given for each 12 hours of work with a diploma and also a degree for 24 and 36 hours. All classes are conducted on a college equivalent level.

Full curriculum may be obtained by writing to Southern California School of the Bible, Box 39, Temple City, California, 91780.

Richard Messner, director of development for Grace College and Seminary of Winona Lake, Ind., former trumpet player with evangelistic teams, and once the property of the New York Giants as a pitcher, will speak Sunday, 7 p.m. in Los Altos Brethren Church, 6565 Stearns St.

Inc., a non-profit organization, is big business in itself, and owns three commercial businesses — a girdle factory in Brooklyn, N.Y., an electronics salvage firm, and an advertising agency. These, says Humbar, generate but 2 per cent of the Cathedral's annual budget of $5 million. The church mortgages on various properties come to almost $8 million, including $2.5 million on a 202-unit highrise, Federally financed low-income project for the elderly, located on the church property and sponsored by the church.

The Brooklyn girdle factory "Real Form Girdle," made an intriguing piece of copy when the question of taxing church commercial enterprises not related to religion was being debated.

Humbar figures his electronic evangelism reaches 5 million viewers each Sunday, and in bad weather he would add another three or four million. "Same of them," he says, "haven't seen the inside of a church in years."

Jesus Movement growth, women leaders, Catholic stability marked church year

Presbyterian, So. Baptist hassles, prayer amendment defeat featured

By LES RODNEY

The year 1971 did not lack for interesting stories in the world of religion. Remarkable growth of the "Jesus Movement" among young people, uproar over a church grant to the Angela Davis defense, defeat of an emotion-laden school prayer amendment, advance of women to leading posts in major denominations, a hassle in Southern Baptist ranks over Sunday School material favoring integration, debate over the merits of "Jesus Christ Superstar" and stability amidst controversy within the Roman Catholic Church were among developments.

Proliferation of the Jesus fervor among young people was certainly the most eye catching and headline grabbing item. Many saw it as the most deeply significant.

SWEAT SHIRTS, bumper stickers, huge sales of records dealing with Jesus, formations of communes of Jesus People, a revival of old-fashioned street evangelism as typified by a youthful "Jesus March" down Long Beach's Pine Avenue during Christmas week — all these suggested to some folks elements of faddism, another form of youthful conformity.

But there were also a number of successful Jesus Movement newspapers edited by talented young people, apparently taking over some of the "Free Press" type of circulation. There was ample evidence of real success in winning some youngsters away from drug addiction. In several cities the momentum of the "movement" swept some Jewish young people into participation. Perhaps most significantly, there was evidence of the new Jesus fervor merging with young groups within many churches, where, religious leaders hoped, a grounding and deepening of the original emotional commitment might take place.

Many who a year ago tended to dismiss the whole movement — including Billy Graham and some "mainline" Protestant theologians — began paying tribute to the phenomenon.

Graham, after some early caution, saw in the Jesus Movement nothing less than the beginning of the biblically predicted final revival movement before the Second Coming.

REV. DR. Eugene L. Smith, executive secretary of the U.S. office of the World Council of Churches, commented that Jesus Christ is the "latest hero" of American youth. Contributing to this, he says, is the need "in a leaderless age" for divine leadership, and the need in a complex world for simple answers.

"In a tense time, they want to show love," Smith says. "In a despairing decade, they want hope reaffirmed, and in our accelerated life tempo, they cry for instant salvation."

Smith adds "perhaps the most eloquent fact about it is the demonstrated unwillingness of people in a period of great uncertainty to live without faith." American churches, he concludes, have an unprecedented opportunity to meet this need "with a Christian life style which, in spiritual depth and human involvement, is faithful to the full Gospel and the total needs of the people."

Others remained skeptical, seeing the Jesus Movement, like most other things suddenly embraced by a youthful generation, destined to die away and be replaced by other enthusiasms.

The truth, as most often is the case, probably lay somewhere between the uncritical hosannas and the skeptical dismissals. Certainly the Jesus Movement could hardly be ignored.

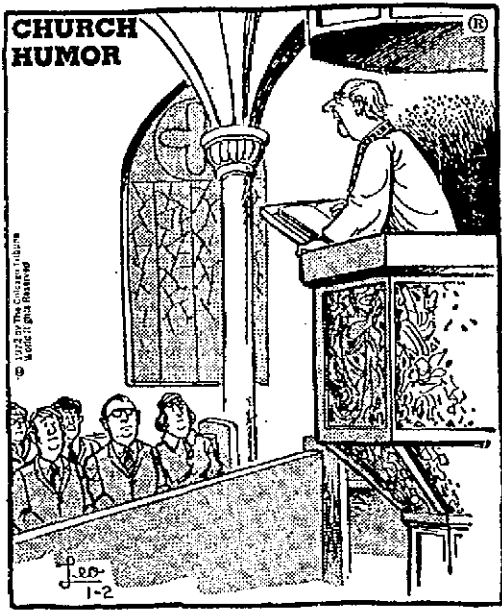

THAT ELASTIC institution, the Roman Catholic Church, which was expected by some to erupt in schism and dissolve in chaos along about now, did nothing of the sort in 1971, though it had its problems and its still simmering differences, as follows:

—The Supreme Court knocked out state plans in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania for subsidizing salaries of parochial school teachers, blocking similar plans in 15 states and thus increasing financial pressures on the beleaguered church school system.

—Studies commissioned by U.S. Catholic bishops at the cost of $500,000 showed that most priests favored optional celibacy — but the very same bishops and a worldwide synod in Rome went right ahead and reaffirmed that the celibacy requirement must be maintained.

—Indictments of three anti-war priests and a nun on startling federal charges of plotting to kidnap a presidential aide and blow up the capital's heating system has added another dimension to divisions within the church, since almost all Catholic publications, many priests and most seminarians empathize with the Berrigan brothers, while the Catholic "silent majority" does not.

—A second Roman Cath-

"On that final judgment day we may be seeing an instant replay of those who missed services to watch football."

olic bishop, Bernard M. Kelly of Providence, R.I., resigned from the episcopacy, protesting its rigidity.

—The National Council of Catholic Bishops was roundly denounced by some Catholic conservatives, notably Bill Buckley, for coming out against the prayer-in-schools amendment, and for condemning the Vietnam war.

—And, to confuse those who thereby think the National Council of Catholic Bishops is too "liberal," the bishops elected John Cardinal Krol, considered a conservative, as the new president to replace John Cardinal Dearden, a liberal.

The nature of news being what it is, these are the things that made "Catholic news" in 1971, rather than what must be one of the most imaginative and sensitive programs in American church history, the U.S. Bishops' many-sided drive against poverty on meaningful local levels, along with a campaign to educate those who are self-righteous, smug and ignorant about poverty.

OTHER 1971 developments and trends: An uproar within the United Presbyterian Church was caused by the our job. It's not appropriate under Baptist policy, which leaves such matters to individual congregations."

Ten state Southern Baptist conventions have since adopted resolutions, eight denouncing the board action and two supporting it. California, among the former, demanded that the board publicly state its position "on race relations and its belief in integration."

The decision stood, and the offending material, including a drawing of two white teen girls chatting with a black young man outside a church, remained locked in the vaults. Said the Maryland Baptist in an editorial: "The shock waves are still coming in. The issue is by no means settled."

THE ECUMENICAL movement, as expressed by relations on the local levels, prospered quietly, and on the formal level, such as the COCOP plan to unite nine Protestant denominations, continued to look as if the steam had gone out of it.

The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod turned down proposals by its president, Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, to clamp unprecedented restrictions on Synod educators.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders continued their efforts for peace. Members of 11 denominations and Councils in a "Protestant Leaders Consultation on Vietnam" went to Paris to confer with those taking part in the peace talks.

Another group of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders held a weeklong vigil and fast in Washington, D.C. to express concern "for the country and its leaders, our weariness that the fighting has no end, our bitterness of heart that the killing goes on."

Women were voted into the top elective office of the United Presbyterian Church and the American Baptist Convention, and two women were ordained by the American Lutheran Church, which then told the Missouri Synod it would not reconsider, even if its action regrettably would cost it the cherished altar and pulpit fellowship with its more conservative fellow Lutherans. So far, it hasn't, though the Synod did move to freeze relations at where they stand.

Religion was blamed by learned journalistic pundits for the India-Pakistan war, in addition to the Israel-Arab and Northern Ireland messes, though even a casual examination showed that nationalism, economics and geo-politics were the overriding villains in each case. (There hardly seemed enough REAI religion in the areas mentioned to start a decent bonfire!)

The ultra-ultra conservative American Council of Christian Churches at its annual convention didn't leave its people much maneuvering room for Christian fellowship when, in addition to its usual targets, the allegedly apostasy-ridden councils of churches and most of the major communions, it attacked and urged complete separation from, the "National Association of Evangelicals, Evangelism-in-Depth, Key 73 Evangelism, Campus Crusade and other compromising groups."

Homosexuals broke into the open in demanding full equality in the churches. In some cities (not Long Beach) they organized their own congregations.

National statistics showed a slight drop in church membership figures, a slight rise in church attendance, and a pretty good rise in giving. If that sounds paradoxical, 'tain't necessarily so. Some folks in the churches have predicted for the years ahead a trend to fewer, but more deeply committed Christians.

Take it away, '72.

NEW YEAR REVIVAL

Evangelist Jack Garner of Dallas will be the speaker for a New Year Revival Meeting Monday through Sunday, Jan. 9 at Bible Baptist Church, 1394 W. 25th St., with services at 7:30 each night. Starting Tuesday he will also conduct 11 a. m. services on soul winning, prayer and Bible study, reports Rev. Don Jospinosa of the fast growing church, an affiliate of the Bible Baptist Fellowship. Nursery service and transportation are offered if needed.

Episcopal venture

Seven Episcopal churches in the Southeast area of Los Angeles County have joined together to form an "Inter-Parish Committee on Evangelism" — first such joint effort in the history of the Diocese. An outgrowth of the recent "Invitation to Live" Crusade held at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Downey, the new committee will seek further avenues for presenting the Gospel message to Episcopalians and others of the catholic tradition.

Confident living Advice for '72 —don't look back

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

When you hang up that 1972 calendar this weekend, don't treat it lightly. Spend a moment affirming all the wonderful things the new year has in store for you. "What wonderful things?" you may ask skeptically. "My life is full of problems!" Of course you have problems — everyone does at one time or another — but if you regard your problem as a challenge rather than a deterrent, the new year will be, terrifically different for you.

Here is something to do in '72. Don't mull over the past. Extract what knowledge it may have contained, then forget it. Look ahead; never back. And have a goal, not a fuzzy one, but a sharp, clearly defined goal. Hold it in the conscious mind until it sinks into the unconscious. And when it gets into the unconscious, you have it, for it has you. Remember, what you think in the year ahead will determine precisely what you are and the kind of world you live in. How you think determines what you become.

YOU CAN transform yourself and your life by renewing your thoughts. If you are pessimistic about the new year, don't be. Change your thoughts — begin thinking hopefully and look for opportunities in every difficulty instead of difficulty in every opportunity.

How you look at a problem makes all the difference. I am reminded of a line from a poem which goes like this: "Two men look out through the same bars; One sees mud and the other sees stars." It is an interesting phenomenon how two people view the same situation so differently, according to how they think.

Have you ever thought about why some people say a day is partly sunny and others, commenting on the same day, will say it is partly cloudy? It is the optimist who remembers the sunshine while the pessimist can only remember the dark clouds. Or if a glass of water is half full, the optimist will think of it that way. But the pessimist will say, "It's half empty!"

Visiting a certain city recently, I stopped at a coffee shop for some breakfast. There I met an acquaintance I hadn't seen for some time. "How have you been?" I asked.

"Oh, not bad," he sighed sadly.

"You mean things could be better?" I said.

"No," he exclaimed, "actually things are pretty good. But it can't go on this way for long!"

Funny how this fellow, who has always been a bit of a pessimist, just couldn't think of his life as very good; rather he described things as not bad. With that kind of attitude, and his fear that things are bound to go wrong, he may easily think himself into defeat.

Think of things as good and they will likely turn out that way. Do a rehabilitation job on your thoughts and begin living with joy. Don't allow yourself to become discouraged or negative. Often we tend to blame external factors for our failures. But the place to look is within ourselves, in the kind of thoughts we think.

I RECENTLY received a letter from a young man in prison who, when he looked deeply inside himself, found that a whole new world opened up for him. He writes:

"When I first arrived here I was depressed and down on everyone including myself. I attempted suicide because I thought nobody cared. Then an inmate gave me one of your positive booklets and for the first time I was able to see that the whole problem was myself. I set about changing what I saw. Now that I know the true meaning of faith, with God's help, I'll get through this and soon I'll be going home, a changed person!"

This boy is no longer living on a failure base. Now his mind is filled with vibrant positive thoughts. Life is making the most of every moment and if he sticks to it, soon the world will be his!

Remember Kipling's poem: "If you can fill the unforgiving minute/With sixty seconds' worth of distance run/Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it/And — which is more — you'll be a Man, my son!"

So start being an optimist and love every minute of 1972. It is made for you!

'GOOD TWINS' HERE MONDAY

The Good Twins, whose contemporary rendition of Gospel music is heard over 117 TV stations on the Revival Fires program, will present a concert Monday 7:30 p.m. in First Christian Church, Fifth Street and Locust Avenue, to which the public is invited. The identical twins, ministers at Lincoln Christian College of Illinois, are also composers, with several award-winning albums.

50th anniversary for Immanuel Lutheran

Sunday begins the celebration of the 50th anniversary at Immanuel Lutheran Church at 345 Carson St.

The thriving church, which numbers almost 400 adults, and 157 children in its congregation, began back in 1921 when women from the then Augustana Synod Group met in the home of Mrs. Hulda Peterson. Most of them were from the midwest, and many worked with the Scandinavian Women's Aid Society.

The group met for worship in 1921 at the Seventh-day Adventist Church on Tenth and Linden. On Jan. 1, 1922, Immanuel Lutheran Church of Long Beach was formally organized under Pastor Herman Lind.

In 1926, under Pastor Elmer Olson, property was acquired at Sixth Street and Temple Avenue and in 1927 the first church building was dedicated. The congregation grew throughout the years, and in 1940 the first unit of the present structure at Carson and Elm was completed. The present sanctuary was dedicated in 1957, and additions and renovations were completed in 1959, under the leadership of the present pastor, Rev. Irvin R. Molne, who was called to Immanuel in 1955.

A committee is planning anniversary year activities and celebrations. It is composed of Lars Gotberg, chairman, Mrs. Walter Kuhns, Anne Lanning and Lyle Schmillen.

We will report further on the anniversary doings in future editions as plans unfold.

Hargis, Nat'l Council 'bedfellows' Claim pressure by IRS curbs church freedoms

By GEORGE W. CORNWELL
AP Religion Writer

A quiet battle of nerves is going on today between the government and the churches over their freedom to take positions on political and social issues. In one case, the conflict already is in the courts.

It also was pointed up in a study by a group of Episcopal attorneys, saying the Internal Revenue Service seems to be taking a tougher approach to churches in an attempt to curb their activities on political-social matters.

"Although governmental surveillance and control of church activities is commonplace in some countries, it is virtually unprecedented in the United States," the study notes.

However, it says that in some recent instances, threats by government agents of a loss of tax exemption have frightened churches into dropping plans for certain programs.

"IT CAN have a chilling effect on certain of their actions," said John M. Evans, a Manhattan lawyer and member of the Guild of St. Ives, an organization mainly of attorneys that made the study.

"If this method amounts to intimidation, it's not permissible," he added in an interview. "What has happened to date is a danger sign. It's a problem of constitutional dimensions."

IN ONE such case, a U.S. District Court in Oklahoma recently struck down an IRS action against an organization of conservative Evangelists Billy James Hargis, ruled that its activity is in harmony with its faith and ordered a tax refund.

The case is headed for the U.S. Supreme Court through a government appeal, and other church groups, some of which differ with aspects of Hargis' ministry, are considering joining in the case on his side.

The study notes that most major American churches maintain that participation in social-political affairs with moral implications is a religious responsibility, and they've done so extensively, previously without government interference.

They've dealt outspokenly with such issues as the Vietnam War, racism, poverty, housing, welfare systems, medical care, economic maldistribution.

"Major church denominations and national church associations advise us that to their knowledge they have not previously been subjected to governmental investigation or attempted curtailment of their activities," the report says.

However, it adds that IRS investigations of church political activities, carried on in the last two years, are now seen by the churches as a "major threat to their integrity and effective functioning."

SEVERAL SPECIFIC cases are cited, without naming them, but it was learned that some of those referred to include:

— A decision by the Episcopal Church to cancel a special 1970 offering planned to aid student political activity, after the IRS warned that the program would "jeopardize" denominational tax exemption.

— A continuing examination of records of a "major national association of churches with respect to its involvement in 'political' and 'social' action." This, it was learned, is the National Council of Churches, made up of 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations.

— Advice to a church in Massachusetts that its use by a student peace group could endanger its tax-exempt status. Apart from the report, sources identified the church as Trinity Church, of Melrose, Mass., a Boston suburb.

It was further learned that when the parish refused to abide by the warning to bar the peace group, and prepared to take the case to court, with support of various Massachusetts church groups, the IRS reportedly dropped the matter.

"It was a clear-cut case of intimidation that was not backed up," says Rev. Arthur Wainwright of the Massachusetts Council of Churches.

Under the IRS code, tax-exempt organizations are restricted to those that devote "no substantial part" of their activities to propaganda, attempts to influence legislation, or taking sides in political campaigns for election.

THE GUILD study notes that regulations do not absolutely prohibit involvement in political issues, and some church studies have indicated only 1 per cent of funds go to such purpose.

However, the Guild says the problem does not lie with the regulation itself, but the way in which it now is being administered, with IRS agents taking a "much broader view" than before of activities deemed impermissible.

Although some church people themselves object to their churches' involvement in political-social issues, the study says it is "probably impossible" for them to avoid it under their concepts of the demands of faith.

They have consistently avoided backing particular candidates, but the study adds:

"The churches have and undoubtedly will continue to take public stands on issues many of which may be controversial and politically charged, but such stands by themselves do not appear to violate the prohibition."

GOINGS ON

Korean Lutheran leader here

Rev. Dr. Won Young Ji, Asia secretary for the Lutheran World Federation headquartered in Switzerland, will be the speaker Sunday at 8:30 and 11 a.m. in First Lutheran, Atlantic and Ninth. The North Korean-born Dr. Ji was confirmed in 1952 at Concordia Seminary by Rev. E. H. Schroeder, now the pastor at First Lutheran. He joined the Lutheran mission staff in Seoul, founded a theological program, and established several congregations before being appointed Asia secretary for the world federation.

Evangelist Jerry B. Walker of Austin, Tex. begins special meetings Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Calvary Light Assembly, 2034 Cherry Ave., with services other nights except Saturday at 7:30. The church has been enlarged to seat 900, and a new parking lot is ready for the event.

The Gospel Lads Quartet, now with the Revival Fires ministry, will conduct a "Revival Fires Reach Out Rally" Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in North Bellflower Church of Christ, 14913 S. Clark Ave.

United Methodist Long Beach District Superintendent Rev. Melvin Talbert will be New Year's pulpit guest Sunday 9 and 11 a.m. in First Methodist, Fifth and Pacific, speaking on "Ah, That Was Yesterday," with a social coffee hour to follow.

Rev. Dr. Ben T. Cowles, former missionary to China, now director of the church's pastor counseling service, will preach Sunday 9 and 11 a.m. in Covenant Presbyterian, Third and Atlantic.

Dr. Henry Fisher, director of the University Institute of the University of Judaism, will speak on "The Quintessence of Judaism" Thursday in Temple Sinai, Seventh and Molino, as the third in the annual lecture series. The series is open to the public at a nominal donation, according to the temple.

Says movies like use of parables

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Use of movies to communicate the Christian message is similar to Jesus' use of parables, says G. William Jones, who teaches fine arts at Southern Methodist University.

He said in a lecture at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary here that movies, like parables, apply ideas to life rather than leaving them as cold abstractions.

FROM THE PULPIT

Dr. Frank Collins

The end of the year is like a high spot in the road from which the traveler can see in both directions. It is good time for self-examination. Ask yourself just what has been achieved in your life spiritually during the past year. An honest evaluation will give you the basis for some definite spiritual goals in the coming twelve months.

The Apostle Paul made a worthy resolution before his visit to Corinth. "I determined not to know any thing among you save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified." Our lives would be greatly enriched this year if we were to follow Paul's example. The supreme purpose of our lives ought to be the witness of "Christ crucified." We wish you a blessed and happy new year. Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

Is it logical to believe in God?

Yes, but no newspaper ad can convince you of God's presence and power.

What will convince you is a radically new view of God as Love itself. As all intelligence. As the very Principle of your being.

This scientifically-based view of God healed all types of disease 2000 years ago, and it is healing many people right now.

This week's Bible Lesson on "God" can give you some logical new views of God and yourself. You're welcome to read it in our public Reading Room.

California's 18-21 age group faces new rights, problems

SACRAMENTO (AP) — About one out of every 20 Californians is about to open a big new package of rights and responsibilities.

They are the Golden State's approximately one million 18-to-20-year-olds, who after March 4 will be able to hold most elective offices, sit on juries and even file for bankruptcy.

They can change their names without parental consent, become game wardens, take police examinations and sell insurance.

It will be legally possible for California to have an 18-year-old governor after the 1974 election and there could be teenagers in the legislature next year.

BUT THE LAW conferring nearly full-fledged citizenship on young people leaves unchanged California's ban on alcohol for those under 21.

An attempt to get a constitutional amendment on the ballot to allow under-21 drinking failed during the waning days of the 1971 legislature.

The new law also allows judges to commit those under 21 to the California

Youth Authority rather than state prison. But the young defendant will be considered an adult during the trial.

Boys under 21 can get married without parental consent after March 4. That privilege was extended previously to girls when they turn 18.

The new law could have some unforeseen side effects.

For instance, an out-of-state college student can now come to California, establish legal residence, and avoid the out-of-state fees charged by the University of California and state colleges. Legal residence in college towns for students could mean a king-sized voter bloc.

State Welfare Director Robert Carleson says the new adult-at-18 law will knock about 29,000 young people off the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program at a savings of about $30 million. Eighteen-to-21-year-olds will no longer be considered children and therefore won't qualify after March 4, Carleson says.

A LEGAL battle may be shaping up over the drinking question. Some lawmakers figure the California Constitution will be ruled in conflict with the equal protection under the law guarantee of the U.S. Constitution's 14th Amendment.

The argument goes this way: You can't deny an adult in good standing the right to drink and those between 21 and 18 are officially adults.

Sen. Clark Brandle, R-San Jose, an opponent of the new law, told his fellow senators the California Constitution's no-drinking-under-21 clause will be knocked out by a court "so fast it will make your head swim."

Top GOP men deny rivalry

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Republican leader Bob Monagan and the man some insiders say is his chief rival for party leadership both say there will be no party power struggle between them and that Monagan will head Assembly Republicans for a seventh year.

"I think Bob will be overwhelmingly, if not unanimously, elected, and I will cast the first vote for him," said GOP caucus chairman John Stull.

Monagan said stories of a conservative challenge to his leadership "are without any foundation at all that we can find."

But other sources, including one Assembly Republican who asked that his name not be used, still say conservatives will challenge the moderate Monagan's leadership if they think they can raise the votes to oust him.

ASSEMBLY Republicans are scheduled to elect a floor leader and caucus chairman Sunday, the day before the 1972 legislative session starts.

The Associated Press reported Wednesday that Capitol insiders said Stull — a leader of the conservative wing of the party — was gathering votes to unseat Monagan and stood just three or four votes short of having the coup locked up.

But Stull said Democrats were spreading false rumors in an attempt to divide Republican leaders and said he hasn't seen any movement to oust Monagan.

"This apparently is a continuation of the effort by Democrats, particularly the speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys, to drive a wedge between Monagan and me," Stull said.

MONAGAN said he believes he has "nearly unanimous support" in the Republican caucus, which he said "is very solidified" today.

"There are not more than a handful of personal enemies. I don't think more than five or six out of the whole 37," he said.

Last year Monagan was reelected Republican Assembly leader by a 20-17 vote on a secret ballot of the GOP caucus.

On the other side of the aisle in the Assembly, insider reports continued that Walter Karabian of Monterey Park will be dropped sometime next week as Democratic floor leader. Assemblymen Leo McCarthy of San Francisco, Jack Fenton of Montebello and Charles Warren of Los Angeles remained the most-mentioned likely successors.

Michigan-Stanford is almost instant replay

BO SCHENBECHLER

By LOEL SCHRAMMER
Staff Writer

Some of the little old ladies in Pasadena may recall the event. It occurred 70 years ago when Michigan engaged Stanford in what has become known as the Rose Bowl.

Fielding Yost's Point-a-Minute machine nearly equalled its pace with a 49-0 victory over Stanford in a game shortened by darkness.

A rerun is scheduled today at 2 p.m. when the Wolverines and the Indians are matched in the 58th Tournament of Roses football game before more than 100,000 fans.

Michigan, on the strength of an 11-0 record and its No. 4 ranking in the country, is favored by from 10 to 11½ points, depending upon your source for wagering. The game will be televised locally by Ch. 4.

Michigan might, under normal circumstances, be a prohibitive favorite in view of Stanford's erratic performances against such teams as Duke, San Jose State and Washington State, all of which were losing efforts for the Indians.

But it is not easy to erase the memory of last Jan. 1 when Ohio State's unbeatable Buckeyes bounced into the Rose Bowl and were routed rudely by Stanford, 27-17.

There is no Jim Plunkett around this time to rally the Indians — he has gone off to the professional wars. But Stanford, in its moments of greatness, has been directed smartly by Don Bunge, who passed for 2,265 yards and ran for 248 to finish second in the nation in total offense with 2,513 yards.

Bunge, who doesn't lack confidence, says the Indians will have "a few trick plays" for the Wolverines, whose unbending defense has restricted the opposition to an average of 179.7 yards per game.

"We'll try to establish a ground game early," Bunge reveals. "We'll probably throw more to our backs than we have. We'll try to work on Michigan's wolf man, Frank Gusch.

This intended strategy interests Gusch.

"I'll be waiting for them," says the Michigan secondary man.

Both coaches were candid in out-

"We have to stop the big play," said Michigan coach Bo Schenbechler, who sustained a heart attack two years ago and was in a Pasadena hospital when the Wolverines dropped a 10-3 Rose Bowl decision to USC.

Vince 'outcoached' but Georgia wins

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Georgia's Vince Dooley claimed brother Bill of North Carolina "outcoached me... but we won it... and that's what it's all about."

Jimmy (The Greek) Poulos blazed 25 yards to a touchdown Friday to settle the brotherly coaching war and give Georgia a 7-3 victory in a Gator Bowl game where defense was king.

Poulos escaped the hand-to-hand combat for 161 yards in 20 carries and was selected the most valuable player for the sixth-ranked Bulldogs.

"Poulos had his greatest day in a fine sophomore season," said Vince Dooley. "We couldn't have won without him. Poulos is a game-breaker and today he broke it."

The Dooleys sweated through a 0-0 first half before two quick Bulldog strikes settled the family affair before 71,208 fans.

Vince Dooley showed some brotherly consideration in the final seconds of the game by running out the clock after taking over in prime scoring range at the North Carolina 19.

As for Bill, he said, "When you're coaching and trying to win, you forget who the guy is on the other side — brother or no brother."

Ken Craven had kicked a

"But it's not for me. I've got a pretty good job. I'm happy now, although I can't say how happy I'll be — or how happy the alumni will be — after tonight."

The 58-year-old Bryant, who has had numerous pro offers, also shrugged off the suggestion of his launching a new career.

"I'm too old now," he said dourly. "Pro coaching has certain attractions — and they were the big heroes Friday as the West took advantage of six East mistakes to score a 17-13 victory.

Hammond, rather small for the pros at six feet and 178 pounds, was the "other" quarterback among the three the West used. Jim Jones of Southern California and Brian Sipe of San Diego State came into the game as the players to watch but Hammond took the play away from them by throwing a pair of long scoring passes.

Hammond, who won all-league honors as a wide receiver in the Southwest Conference as a junior, threw scoring strikes of 45 yards to Bobby Moore of Oregon and 28 yards to Tom Reynolds of San Diego State. The little man from Southern Methodist also saw duty as a wide receiver, grabbing two passes for 16 yards, and carried the ball three times for four more yards.

"He reminds me of Doak Walker," said West head coach Hayden Fry of SMU. "Make no mistake about it, he'll play somewhere in the pros."

Walker also played his collegiate ball at SMU and was a pro star with the Detroit Lions in the 1950s. Buchanan should have little trouble graduating to the pro ranks. If there were any doubters in the house Friday, they went home convinced after he intercepted three passes and forced the East quarterbacks to go away from

The collision of the 10th-ranked Nittany Lions and the 12th-ranked Longhorns comes two years too late for most football purists.

Texas and Penn State were the toast of the country in 1969 but the Longhorns got most of the kudos because they whipped

It's time to remember some who won't see '72

Should old acquaintance be forgot and never brought to mind? Should old acquaintance be forgot and days of Auld Lang Syne...

As the glasses are raised this New Year's, the toast is to the good guys from the world of fun and games who left us during the 12 months just passed. This earth was better off for having known them and the world can ill afford the loss.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Sickness took Dan Reeves, and all the while he was smiling knowing he was losing in the game nobody ever wins. It was a big and wonderful heart that stopped that grey April day in New York.

The Rams lost more than an owner. Danny was the head of a football family. Professional football lost a man who dedicated his life to its welfare and helped nurse it through its times of illness and helped it overcome its weaknesses.

Reeves lived to see his beloved game grow beyond his wildest dreams, and he was smiling when the pain finally left his ravaged body.

And never brought to mind...

Iggy Lopez and Phil Patton, two of the sports writing guys, were far too young to go. There were still so many places to go and so many things to see and so many games to cover.

IGGY KNEW HE was going during his tour of the spring baseball camps and there was effort in his voice when he said, "What the hell, let's have a drink."

The press boxes on the coast, and in San Jose and Santa Barbara, are emptier now.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Dallas Moon and Joe O'Hara and Bill Hannah were on a simple scouting mission when their airplane ran into a mountain. It shouldn't have happened. The assistant coaches at Cal State Fullerton still had so much to do to help and teach the kids.

"They were such good men," Dick Coury said. It was so little to say. Still, it was enough.

And days of Auld Lang Syne...

For as long as men talk of memorable figures on the college gridirons of our nation, they will remember the greatness of

BUD TUCKER

Kenny Washington. Some men take the lessons of competition into later life. Kenny Washington was one of them.

The killer took him, too, but not without a fight. Kenny was a good friend and credit to his race. I mean, of course, the human race.

For Auld Lang Syne, my dear...

It will not be the same around the race tracks without Eddie Neley, the smiling trainer. Eddie first came to the Southland with a champion named Buck-passer.

There was a certain magic in both of them and it may never be decided which one had the bigger heart.

For Auld Lang Syne...

Somehow, I do not think I will ever sit in a horse racing press box without expecting Jerry O'Brien to walk in. Jerry loved his work at the Daily Racing Form and the friends it helped him make.

IT IS A LONELY stroll through this life for a man without a sense of humor. Jerry O'Brien never spent a solitary moment in all his years upon this earth.

Jerry knew more horse racing stories than any man alive and he always said he was going to put them together in a book. Like so many of us, he never got around to it.

We'll take a cup of kindness yet...

Johnny Addie's job as ring announcer at Madison Square Garden was a hobby but he worked hard at it. He put enough into it to add class to a sport that needed it.

And football lost a class guy when Walt Hackett died on a locker room floor.

For Auld Lang Syne...

And didn't Bobby Jones contribute a world of class to the game of golf. Few voices are raised in dissent when Bobby is called the greatest of them all.

It is of such men that legends are made. And it is of the good guys who are gone that memories are made.

Should old acquaintance be forgot? And never brought to mind...

No, not this year. Or any other.

Hutson heads Rose Bowl list

Don Hutson, the all-America Alabama end who caught two touchdown passes in the 1935 Rose Bowl game, heads the 50-year Rose Bowl team announced Friday.

Joe Hendrickson, sports editor of the Pasadena Star-News, polled a group of 22 sportswriters and Rose Bowl experts from coast-to-coast to select the team.

Hutson, who caught six passes for 164 yards in the 29-13 victory over Stanford, garnered the most first place votes — 16. Halfback O. J. Simpson, who appeared in the 1968 and 1969 games for Southern California, was selected on 15 first team ballots.

The 50-year team was selected since it was in 1923 when the Tournament of Roses moved its New Year's Day football game to the present Rose Bowl.

Honored by the panel were:

and Carl Eller, Minnesota, 1962; Guards: Jim Stillwagon, Ohio State, 1969 and 1971, and Harry Smith, Southern California, 1967; Linebackers: Les Richter, California, 1951, and Ernie Pincert, Southern California, 1930 and 1932; Cornerbacks: Leroy Keyes, Purdue, 1967, and Jack Tatum, Ohio State, 1969 and 1971; Safety: Bob Stiles, UCLA, 1966.

Millikan bid fails

West Covina High out-rebounded Millikan 39-22 and took advantage of 23 turnovers to hand the Rams a 71-66 setback Friday night for third place honors at the Covina Tournament.

Millikan's big men, Steve Simacek and Bob Cromer, could pull down only seven rebounds between them. Dan Frost was high rebounder and score for the Rams with six caroms and a career-high 19 points.

Most of Millikan's turnovers came on bad passes caused by a tough Spartan full court zone press.

Del Richie scored 18 points for the losers.

Millikan scorers: Steve Simacek (4), West Covina scoring: Steve Simacek (4), Del Richie (18), Preziorek (2).

Battle-tested Dallas favored over 49ers

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — It will be the Dallas Cowboys' maturity vs. the San Francisco Forty Niners' youthful vigor Sunday when those two clubs clash for the second year in a row for the National Football Conference championship and a ticket to Super Bowl VI.

The Cowboys, currently riding the crest of an eight-game win streak — the longest in club history — won the 1970 showdown 17-10 in San Francisco and are seven-point favorites to do so again when they lineup at 10:30 a.m. PST in Texas Stadium.

Playoff pressure is old-hat to the Cowboys, who are in the post-season grind for the sixth straight year, but it wasn't until they beat the Forty Niners a year ago that they were able to minimize the off-heard charge that "they always blow the big one."

The Forty Niners, on the other hand, until getting to the NFC finals last season hadn't been in any kind of playoff since 1957 when Frankie Albert's team tied Detroit for the NFL title and then lost a 31-27 decision to the Lions.

Dallas coach Tom Landry says it is "a very mature team we have now... it has taken years to build up the playoff experience we really need."

Dick Nolan, Landry's one-time playing partner and coaching aide, says his Forty Niners "were a little too young and inexperienced a year ago although we gave them a run for it... now, it's going to be different. We've got that first-year jitters out of our system."

The Forty Niners gain the maturity edge in quarterbacking with 15-year veteran John Brodie pitted against the Cowboys' third-year phenom, Roger Staubach.

Shula expects Unitas to unload some bombs

MIAMI (UPI) — Baltimore's Johnny Unitas beat Miami with short passes the last time the two teams played, but Dolphin coach Don Shula thinks the Colts may go for the "bomb" when the teams meet in the Orange Bowl Sunday afternoon for the American Football Conference championship.

For his part, Colt coach Don McCafferty expects Miami to show some new wrinkles.

The two teams finished up their hard practices Friday, the Dolphins at their Miami training camp and Baltimore in Tampa, where the Colts have been practicing to get acclimated to the warm weather.

Still questionable as starters because of leg injuries are Baltimore running backs Norm Bulaich and Tom Matte. McCafferty said, "Both are recovering fairly rapidly, but we won't know until later whether they'll play." Both worked out in pads Friday for the first time this week.

In Baltimore's 14-3 victory over the Dolphins three weeks ago, it was Unitas' short passes that did most of the damage and two long touchdown drives that controlled the ball.

"But I don't expect John to come out in this game and throw all short stuff again," Shula said. "He knows he beat us with that before and he knows we'll be looking for it. I expect a few bombs to be sprinkled in there this time."

Shula said Miami's problem in the last game against the Colts was the failure of the secondary to move up fast and make the tackles after the short receptions. Shula said he had been working his team to improve on this, but not making any major changes in the Dolphin defense concept of not leaving any room for the long pass.

From Tampa, McCafferty said, "I expect Miami to show us a couple of new things, but I don't expect too much change in the basic Dolphin attack."

He also said that coming to Tampa to train for the game had one bad effect. He said the air conditioning in a dormitory of the University of South Florida, where the team is staying, had caused "six or seven" players to come down with colds.

Asked about his team's mental state, the Baltimore coach said, "If our guys are taking Miami lightly, they're crazy. When you get this far, you don't take anyone lightly or you'll find yourself back home next week helping your wife with the house work."

Shula said one thing that's worrying the Dolphins is the Colt proficiency in blocking field goals. Talking particularly about Bubba Smith and Ted Hendricks, Shula said, "They have great personnel for blocking kicks. This is one thing that concerns us in getting ready for them."

A FEW CHANGES HAVE BEEN MADE

FRESNO (UPI) — Alvin (Guy) Eads, 94, says today's clash between Michigan and Stanford in the Rose Bowl will be a lot different than the last time he saw the two teams play — in 1902.

Eads was one of 8,000 fans who turned out for the first game of the granddaddy of bowl games and saw Michigan slaughter the Indians, 49-0.

"The first game was played out in a field," Eads recalled Friday. "There weren't any seats. Everyone stood up. You could wander around to the other side of the field if you wanted to."

More than 100,000 fans will jam the bowl today and traffic policemen expect a traffic snarl for miles.

Players were shaggy headed in those days too but for different reasons.

"They played without helmets," Eads said at the local rest home where he now lives. "And a lot of the players wore their hair long for extra protection."

The witty and active Eads recalled the Stanford quarterback in that first game was hit so hard on one play he was taken out of the game in a daze.

"But even after he reached the sidelines he still thought he was in the game and kept running up and down and shouting signals," Eads chuckled.

He also remembers that first game netted promoters of the Pasadena Flower Show $4,000 keeping them out of the red and revealing the financial potential for mixing flowers and football violence.

Today's extravaganza will bring in more than $100,000 for each university.

Highs, lows of 1971

NEW YORK (UPI) — The best — and a little of the worst — in the world of sports in 1971:

THE BEST

Joe Frazier and "The Fight" easily won top honors the world around. Frazier's 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali wound up a fight that was as good as its build-up, an artistic success for world-side viewers and a $2.5-million bonanza for each fighter.

Connery II in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and the public's excited involvement with the Venezuelan import in all three Triple Crown events — Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

Lee Trevino, Super-Mex of golf, during his joyful romp through the U.S. Open, Canadian Open and British Open in a month-long surge of near-perfect play.

Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics over the first half of the baseball season and Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates at the finish. Blue went into the mid-season All-Star game with a 17-3 pitching record, Clemente vowed 'em in the World Series by hitting .414 and leading the Buccos from behind to down the Baltimore Orioles in seven games.

Al Unser, Richard Petty, Mark Donohue and Peter Revson, the lords of the Gasoline Alley on the auto racing circuits.

Pat Matzdorf, the high-flying Wisconsin Badger, who leaped 7 feet, 6 1/2 inches in a dual meet with Russia and a 11-foot-8 eight-year-old mark of Russia's Valeri Brumel, oldest world record on the books.

Herve Filion, star of a Canadian harness driving family, who became the first to win more than 500 races in a single year.

Rod Laver during the lefty's phenomenal display of stroke execution, court savvy and iron nerve while sweeping up $180,000 in the tennis champions classic.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the Milwaukee Bucks who signed Jabbar originally as talented, expensive Lew Alcindor.

Nebraska's explosive football team en route to the Orange Bowl.

THE WORST

Two deaths on the football field — Chuck Hughes, wide receiver for the Detroit Lions, in a game against the Chicago Bears; Texas Christian coach Jim Pittman, 46, on the sidelines during a game against Baylor. Both from heart attacks.

The strange case of Alex Johnson of the California Angels, who was suspended presumably for not giving his all, once charged a teammate pulled a gun on him in the clubhouse, wound up traded to Cleveland at the end of the year. Also out: Angels' manager Lefty Phillips and general manager Dick Walsh.

Investigations and suspensions in the case of who owns Jim French? Jim French is the tough colt that ran second in the Derby, second in the Belmont and third in the Preakness but then he went to the sidelines when racing officials charged undercover ownership was involved.

Preseason injury to Joe Namath of the New York Jets, one of the top football personalities expected to light up television screens all year. By the time he returned, it was too late to help the Jets — and viewers missed plenty of thrills.

Deaths of three Grand Prix auto drivers: Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico, Jo Siffert of Switzerland and Ignazio Giunti of Italy.

"No one gave Stanford a chance against Ohio State last year," he said. "To be perfectly frank, I didn't either. But I was here and I saw what happened."

Schembechler said the Wolverines "must move the football."

"The rest of what we do will be dictated by what Stanford tries to do to stop our running game," he said.

Schembechler believes the pass is something men make at women. The Wolverines, quarterbacked by Tom Slade, a sophomore, threw only 114 times in 11 games, completing 47 for a 41.2 average. They scored six times by passing.

Stanford goes about 60-40 running and passing. The Indians scored 18 times on the ground and 13 via passing.

The contrasting styles of the coaches were pointed out at Friday's press conference.

Schembechler was eager to transport his team to a monastery in the San Gabriel Mountains.

"We'll watch a movie to night," he reported. "We'll see 'The Wild Bunch.'"

There was laughter. Two years ago, USC's defense line, which was dubbed "The Wild Bunch," completely shackled the Wolverines.

"That brings back memories," grinned Bo.

Stanford planned to tough it out at its Rose Bowl headquarters — the Edgewater Hyatt in Long Beach.

Ralston is an understanding man. He knows what a monastery would have done to his swingers. Or vice versa.

come to the Cotton Bowl to play Texas, shooting instead for the Orange Bowl.

This year the two teams have excellent credentials but their records are tainted a bit.

Texas lost to Arkansas and Oklahoma before winning the Southwest Conference title and the host spot in the bowl for the fourth consecutive year.

Penn State was blazing along with 10 victories before Tennessee humiliated the Nittany Lions 31-11 at a regular season ending game on national television.

Both Penn State and Texas have a lot to prove and a sellout crowd of 72,000 fans will be on hand.

"I'm sure a lot of people are thinking we are a bunch of phonies," says Penn State quarterback John Huftnagel.

"We'd been hearing all year what a light schedule we played and had a chance to prove something against Tennessee. The one good thing about it is that we have another game left and it's against Texas. We still have a chance to prove ourselves."

Texas rates a five-point choice over Penn State.

Texas operates from its famed Wishbone-T offense with two excellent quarterbacks available for duty at the helm—Eddie Phillips and Donnie Wigginton, who played most of the season when Phillips was injured.

Texas has a crack halfback in Jim Bertelsen while Penn State counters with all-America Lydell Mitchell.

It will be Penn State's second appearance in the Cotton Bowl. The Nittany Lions tied Southern Methodist 13-13 in 1948. Texas is 7-4-1 in the bowl.

It will be the second Gator Bowl appearance for both universities. Georgia tied Maryland 20-20 in 1948 and North Carolina walloped Air Force 35-0 in 1963, the Tar Heel's only triumph in six post-season events.

Georgia's offense finally awoke on Andy Johnson's 31-yard pass to Lynn Humm-nant, moving the ball to the Carolina 25.

Poulos darted around the left side and went untouched into the end zone to make it 7-3 with 1:39 left in the third period.

The Southeastern Conference runner-up finished with a 11-1 year, its best in Vince Dooley's eight years as head coach. North Carolina, 9-3, still managed its finest season in Bill Dooley's five years.

Senior linebacker Jim Webster, who blocked a Bulldog punt in the first half, was voted North Carolina's Most Valuable Player.

such as no recruiting or academic problems — but I'm essentially a college coach. I like to take a kid and watch him develop."

Bryant has been coaching 27 years, turning sow's ears into silk purses at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and finally Alabama, and during that time has had only one losing season — with Texas A&M in 1954. He has won three national championships and been in bowls for 13 consecutive seasons. His career record is 211-66-15.

In one of the final pre-Orange Bowl press conferences, Devaney joked that he might be tempted to take a fling at the pros "if I had all the hats and meat that Bryant has."

The reference was to the Alabama coach's many business enterprises which have made him independently wealthy.

The chubby, quick-witted Devaney has a 15-year career record of 126-28-6 with a winning percentage of .818. His present Cornhusker team is working on a 31-game unbeaten streak, 22 victories in a row and a second consecutive national crown.

Denver, among other pro teams has felt out Devaney regarding a shift to the pros. "One thing I don't think I'd like," Devaney said, "is the fact that some of the pro players are so highly paid they can go right over your head to the front office."

Both college and pro fever has turned Miami into a frenzied football metropolis, with the Miami Dolphins meeting defending champion Baltimore for the National Football League's American Conference crown Sunday less than 24 hours after the Orange Bowl.

Tickets for both games are being scalped at $100 to $200 apiece. Car rental agencies are stripped of vehicles. Hotels are jammed. Night club business is booming.

More than 60,000 Nebraska fans applied for the 12,000 available tickets.

There was an equally heavy demand from Alabama rooters.

Nebraska, a big, powerful and poised team that averaged 39.1 points a game in sweeping past 12 opponents, rules a 6-point choice over an Alabama team which knocked off five other bowl teams in its unbroken 11-game march.

The Crimson Tide, with quarterback Terry Davis and rusher Johnny Musso, has averaged 32.9 points a game while limiting opponents to a total of 10 touchdowns.

Well-balanced and seasoned Nebraska is led on offense by quarterback Jerry Tagge, who passed for 2,019 yards and 17 touchdowns, a Nebraska record, and fleet Johnny Rodgers, a breakaway slot back and kick return specialist.

The Cornhuskers have two of the nation's leading defensive stars in 6-6, 250-pound Larry Jacobson, a tackle, and 230-pound Rich Glover, an aggressive middle guard. Alabama hopes to counteract Nebraska's size advantage with quickness.

"We have to be quick to survive," said Bryant.

Herd of Buffalos
tramples Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Colorado's sophomore tailback Charlie Davis scored two touchdowns and set up two other scores with a record-breaking 202-yard performance as the Buffalos dealt Houston its first loss in a bowl game 29-17 Friday night in the 13th annual Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Davis scored on runs of 27 and one yards in the first half. His elusive running on two other drives set up quarterback Ken Johnson's one-yard scoring sneak and a five-yard touchdown pass from Johnson to flanker Larry Brunson.

Fullback Robert Newhouse of Houston, the No. 2 rusher in the nation this year, scored both Cougar touchdowns on runs of three and two yards. Ricky Terrell kicked a 28-yard field goal and two extra points.

J. B. Dean kicked a 32-yard field goal and one of two extra point attempts for Colorado.

Davis broke the Bluebonnet Bowl's rushing record of 184 yards set by Houston's Jim Strong in 1969. He carried 37 times, one more than Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens of Oklahoma did in 1968.

Davis had to share honors with John Stearns, the Buffalos' safety and punter. The 5-foot-11 Stearns dove in front of Houston's 6-4 tight end Riley Odums in the end zone to break up a sure touchdown pass in the last quarter.

Stearns pulled his next heroic stunt after Houston's defense held Colorado to one yard on three plays. Stearns went back into his own end zone to punt on fourth-and-nine.

It was a fourth-down play with Colorado leading only 23-17 at the time and it stopped a Houston drive on the nine.

BROTHERLY LOVE—

25-yard field goal to give Carolina a 3-0 lead following a 63-yard march by the Atlantic Coast Conference champions.

Georgia's offense finally awoke on Andy Johnson's 31-yard pass to Lynn Humm-nant, moving the ball to the Carolina 25.

Poulos darted around the left side and went untouched into the end zone to make it 7-3 with 1:39 left in the third period.

The Southeastern Conference runner-up finished with a 11-1 year, its best in Vince Dooley's eight years as head coach. North Carolina, 9-3, still managed its finest season in Bill Dooley's five years.

Cable TV called most important development

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Cable television is "the most important development in communications we will see for the next 10 years" but government control could stifle it, according to a national cable TV official.

Robert Behringer, a member of the board of directors of the National Cable Television Association, has told a panel discussion cable can provide freedom of choice to all citizens if the government keeps controls to a minimum.

The panel was sponsored by the Speech Communication Association as its 57th annual meeting.

Another speaker, John Gallivan, publisher of the Salt Lake City Tribune, said the Federal Communications Commission should concern itself only with technical standards.

Gallivan said the FCC and the Justice Department displayed an "anti-newspaper attitude" in ruling that newspapers cannot own cable television.

Cable TV, he said, "may be as essential to the newspaper of tomorrow as its fleet of trucks is today."

Gallivan said economic pressures were the reason for the diminishing numbers of newspapers and cities in which there is only a single paper.

He said newspapers in this situation fully realize their responsibility to present all sides of a question.

Gallivan said the Tribune was the only paper read in 90 per cent of the households it entered.

"We take a great deal of time and money and effort to get every single opinion we can into our newspaper," Gallivan said.

Are you ready? It's New Year! Football players are up and at it!

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

Most everything called "special" on TV today comes up football or roses (or cotton or orange blossoms) parade. Which, having been reported, calls for some note of the difference between sports — players and fans — and opera — singers and appreciators.

You may or may not be aware by this time of the day, that it is New Year's Day — the day after New Year's Eve, the origins of which few people are concerned about. It is sufficient unto the day for most that it traditionally marks having negotiated another year — an accomplishment also traditionally marked by some sort of riotous thanksgiving.

Without going into the variety of forms these celebrations take they are not, on the whole con-cive to arising bright-eyed and bushy tailed.

Nevertheless, does this deter the sports fan from groping his way to the television set to watch the Sugar Bowl football game at 8:30 in the morning? It does not. And, even considering the difference in time zones, some nod of recognition to the hardness of players must be made for being in shape to indulge in chasing a man with a football around a 100-yard field at this hour, on this day.

But, really, it's nothing for our college athletes, all pure of mind and heart and having the strength of eleven.

NOT SO with the opera buff — or those singing principal or even minor roles.

The Metropolitan Opera, which comes to you live via radio, usually Saturday mornings over KFAC (1930 AM and 92.3 FM), today comes to you at 5 p.m.

The singers and fans — to say nothing of the musicians in the orchestra — may or may not know what last night was, but they know very well that four acts of, even the familiar Bizet "Carmen" is not something anyone except the hardest opera lover is going to tune in to the morning after New Year's Eve.

THERE IS MORE sobering TV fare on Sunday.
